

Reverse discrimination?

Special admission programs will get high court's attention

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to decide whether a school's special admissions program benefitting blacks and other minorities discriminates against whites.

The court's eventual decision could affect the future of all such affirmative action programs undertaken by schools and businesses throughout the nation in the last decade.

These programs have been hailed by some civil libertarians as means of overcoming past discrimination.

The justices agreed to hear the appeal of the University of California at Davis Medical School from a ruling that its special admissions policy is a kind of reverse racial discrimination.

The California Supreme Court ruled last October that the medical school's policy of admitting 16 "special students" — blacks, Mexican-Americans and American Indians — over higher qualified white students was unconstitutional.

"The question is perhaps the most important equal protection issue of the decade," attorneys for the U-C regents told the court. "It lies at the core of the country's commitment to real equality of opportunity for all of its citizens."

Allan Bakke, a 36-year-old white civil engineer who twice was turned down for admission to the medical school, sued the regents. He claimed, and was never challenged by the university, that he would have been included in the school's 100-student entering class in 1973 or 1974 if the special admissions policy was not maintained for the minority students.

The policy, begun in 1969, was established to "increase opportunities in medical education for disadvantaged citizens." But the university never offered an explanation of "disadvantaged" and never admitted a white student under its special policy.

Bakke charged that the admissions policy was nothing more than a racial quota.

The Supreme Court postponed the effect of the state court's order dismantling the admissions program pending appeal by the university. Now the policy will remain in effect until the high court's decision.

Many civil rights groups, fearing an adverse ruling from the Supreme Court, urged the university regents not to appeal the state court's judgment. They felt that the program's failure to admit "disadvantaged" whites made it a weak test case.

More than a dozen civil rights organizations joined in filing a friend of the court brief asking the justices not to accept the case for review.

They contended that Bakke's case was not a good one to use if the court were going to resolve an issue that "may determine the future course of integration efforts not only in the medical profession, but in other professions and the educational avenues leading to them."

The deans of four California law schools, however, urged the court to hear the case and decide that such special admissions policies are valid. The law schools, University of California at Berkeley, UC-Davis, UCLA and the Hastings College of Law, each has such a program.

The issue was before the Supreme Court two years ago but a decision on its merits was never reached.

The court voted 5 to 4 that the suit of white student Marco De Funis against the University of Washington Law School was moot because De Funis was about to graduate from the school. He had been admitted under a lower court's order pending appeal.

One of the dissenters, former Justice William O. Douglas, said the court should consider at that time the validity of such a racially motivated program. He said it was "certainly not benign with respect to the nonminorities who are displaced by it."

Carter's budget $19.4 billion more than Ford's

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today signed and sent to Congress his proposals for a $19.4 billion hike in former President Gerald R. Ford's 1978 budget, saying the increase will help the needy, restore economic growth and make a start on his own programs.

budget director, Bert Lance, Carter quipped, "If you keep a 1979 budget down this small, I'd appreciate it."

The President then went on to say that he looks forward to implementing a "quite radical" budget-making process as he begins preparing his own spending plans for the 1979 fiscal year that will go to Congress next January.

Carter asked Congress to impose a ceiling on hospital charges, a kind of price control that may be the first step toward a comprehensive national health insurance program.

He also proposed increased outlays for education, housing and energy, and a small cutback in outlays for defense. He scrapped Ford's plans to cut food stamp, child nutrition and health programs.

"Proposals have been rejected that would have needlessly added to the burden on the elderly and those who depend upon Medicare, Medicaid and food programs," Carter said in a message to Congress.

But, he said, there has not been time in his four weeks in office to completely rewrite the budget that Ford sent to Congress three days before leaving office.

He said it "is essentially still President Ford's budget ..."

At a brief Oval Office signing ceremony, Carter signed two copies of the 101-page budget amendment — one each for the Senate and House.

Arson again hits school in Covina

COVINA (AP) — Two separately ignited blazes causing at least $125,000 damage to 10 classrooms this morning marked the third instance of arson in two weeks at Gladstone High School, firemen said.

Fire Department Battalion Chief George Stillwagon said while firemen were dousing flames in the north end of the campus, a second fire erupted on the south side of the school.

He said five classrooms, including several science labs, sustained extensive fire damage while an equal number of rooms were rendered unusable today by smoke.

But Arline Schnute, a secretary at Gladstone, said the rest of the school would stay open today.

Burned matches were found scattered throughout the fire areas, Stillwagon said, and gas jets in one of the labs had been turned on in an apparent effort to spread the flames.

Two men held Ontario youth shot to death

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

A 15-year-old Ontario youth was shot to death Monday night following an altercation with two men at an Ontario market earlier in the evening.

The victim, Henry Alcala, of 428 S. Plum Ave., died about 8:45 p.m. at Ontario Community Hospital of shotgun pellet wounds, according to police.

Two Ontario men, identified as Richard Matthews, 24, 800 N. Holmes Ave., and Lawrence Walter Schwan, 24, of 1802 E. Granada Street, were booked in the West End jail this morning without bail on suspicion of murder.

Ontario police said that early Monday evening two men allegedly got into a verbal argument with a group of five young Latinos at the Eastland Market at Cucamonga Avenue and G Street.

The argument ended with the young men and the adults leaving the store. A short time later, the victim and his four friends were in a carport on Virginia Street near Flora Avenue when a truck containing two men drove by. Police said that the youths apparently threw a crowbar and a lead pipe at the pickup truck containing the two men. The men then fired one shot from a 12-gauge shotgun at the youths.

The pellets struck Alcala in the shoulder and neck and he collapsed, police said.

The youths told officers the truck containing the two adults sped away without stopping.

The youths said one of the men was about 24 who had a scar on his right cheek and walked with a limp.

Police said the description matched the description of an amputee who had been involved in another homicide last year in the Ontario area. He was identified as Matthews.

Officers then went to a home on Holmes Avenue, and found a vehicle matching the youths description parked in the driveway. After surrounding the home, officers ordered the occupants outside, but Matthews was not among them.

Police said about an hour later they received a telephone call from a man who identified himself as Rick Matthews. The caller said that he knew he was wanted by the police and wished to turn himself in. However, Schwan walked into the police station lobby and turned himself in to officers.

Through information police learned that Matthews might be staying at Schwan's mother's home and went to investigate.

Matthews was found inside the Schwan home, lying on a sofa and was arrested.

Both men were questioned and then booked in the jail.

Police said that the two suspects claim that as they were driving by the group, a shot was fired at their truck and the tire went flat. The suspects said they then fired back in self defense, police said.

Ehrlichman review nixed by high court

WASHINGTON (AP) — John D. Ehrlichman today was refused Supreme Court review of his conspiracy and perjury conviction stemming from the 1971 burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

The court let stand a decision by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington that Ehrlichman, a top White House aide under former President Richard M. Nixon, was rightly convicted.

Ehrlichman told the justices his conviction carries "potential drastic impact" on national security. He contended that the office break-in "was conducted for the purpose of gathering foreign intelligence information" and therefore was legal.

Congressional probers charge Texaco sitting on gas reserves for big profits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texaco Oil Co. is sitting on reserves in the Gulf of Mexico containing over 500 billion cubic feet of natural gas but failed to produce from these reservoirs because of its "desire to maximize its profits," congressional investigators said today.

Investigators for the House Commerce subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations said natural gas from these fields should have been pumped into interstate pipelines this winter to help avert severe natural gas shortages throughout much of the nation.

Summarizing the findings of a two-month investigation, subcommittee staff members identified the non-producing reserves as the Tiger Shoal and Lighthouse Point natural gas fields, both off the coast of Louisiana and both operated by Texaco.

Texaco has said previously it is producing as much natural gas as it can from these fields.

The subcommittee is studying allegations that energy companies have been withholding natural gas from production to await the higher prices that will come if Congress lifts existing price controls.

"Texaco's failure to accelerate the production of its one-half trillion cubic feet of known reserves in non-producing reservoirs in Tiger Shoal and Lighthouse Point is attributable to (a) profits-before-gas philosophy," testified John Galloway, who headed the subcommittee investigation.

Galloway said Texaco's fields are among the roughly seven trillion cubic feet of proved reserves in non-producing Gulf Coast reservoirs that have been earmarked for interstate pipelines.

The congressional study comes several days after an Interior Department report said that 10 major producers in the Gulf of Mexico had cut gas production on federal leases.

Galloway said most of the Texaco gas in question involves "behind the pipe" reserves. These are untapped reservoirs above other reservoirs already in production.

To get at this behind the pipe gas quickly producers must drill additional wells. Galloway testified that producers have been reluctant to do this because it reduces their profits.

"Production from these reservoirs should have been on line this winter," he said. "Because they are in extremely shallow waters, not requiring drilling platforms, they could have been fully developed in about six months. The failure to produce these reservoirs is directly attributable to Texaco's desire to maximize its profits."

Congressional critics are challenging the Interior Department study, saying it sheds no new light and only restates what department officials knew two years ago.

Seattle police charge debauchery in Fat Tuesday nightmare; one fatality SEATTLE (AP) — The city's first Fat Tuesday celebration — meant to be a week of frivolity patterned on New Orleans' Mardi Gras — got out of control and ended instead in mass drunkenness and one death.

The festivities, favored by sunshine and as many as 50,000 jovial participants, erupted into a nightmare for the 20 policemen assigned to patrol the historic Pioneer Square area in the oldest section of town.

"I can tell you this, if there's a Fat Tuesday celebration next year, I'm going to make sure that I'm sick, or that I'm on furlough or that I'm assigned elsewhere. I will not suffer these indignities again," said Police Sgt. Howard Johnson.

A 22-year-old man, Craig Millar of Seattle, was found dead early Sunday as the celebration was breaking up. Authorities said Millar died of a brain hemorrhage but witnesses told police Millar had been sitting on a corner, apparently unconscious, when four men tried to rouse him. One person kicked him in the head, then fled, police said they were told.

A crowd of about 100 gathered Friday night to watch and cheer a couple making love on the pavement, police said, and managed to get the couple away when officers tried to break through to arrest them.

One of two men who quarreled Saturday night at a fashionable Pioneer Square restaurant was stabbed three times in the back. Witnesses said a third youth who jumped into the fight, then ran from the building with blood on his hands, was arrested on suspicion of assault. The victim, Ricky Allen Vise, 25, was in serious condition.

Marijuana was openly smoked, but it was possibly the least of police problems. Caught unprepared for either the size of the crowds or their behavior, officers said they threw out the rule book.

"In one hour, I watched no less than 20 people urinate on the street," a police sergeant said.

Under a big-top tent, where free music and comedy routines had been presented, the good will began wearing thin by Friday.

Foul-mouthed drunks waved and threw their empties at police, with one celebrant screaming, "Let's start a riot!"

END OF HIKE

Mark Johnson Jr. of Ahoskie, N.C., tightens up the laces on the boots he wore on the last 1,900 miles of his cross-country hike that carried him to all 50 states. Johnson began the journey on Jan. 1, 1976 and ended it Monday in Los Angeles. His hike began in Maine.

Bicentennial hike completed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mark Johnson wasn't just another pedestrian walking into town: After all, he had come 9,000 miles on a Bicentennial hike, wearing out three pairs of tennis shoes and four pairs of work boots.

"I kind of hoped someone would meet me, but nobody did," said the lanky, drawling North Carolinian as he strolled into El Pueblo de Los Angeles State Historic Park on Monday.

"I'd written the mayor's office but somebody said they didn't want to work on the holiday. They were sorry about it," said Johnson.

So, after 418 days on the road, the 23-year-old former Air Force electrician had to settle for a welcome by a handful of reporters, his parents who had flown in from Ahoskie, N.C., and his aunt and uncle who live here.

Johnson was nearly eight months late in finishing the trip he had touted as "a Bicentennial walk for freedom."

He had aimed for last July 4.

During his superstroll, which started Jan. 1 last year in Wells, Maine, Johnson went through, besides the shoes and boots, one suitcase, a duffel bag, two knapsacks and three backpacks.

He said one backpack was stolen as he slept in Montana. A second was stolen in Nevada.

Johnson, grinning under a Mexican sombrero at his finish line in the park commemorating Los Angeles' founding, had walked through all 50 states. He was unsponsored on the trek, and "that's why I call it a walk for freedom. I was the only one dumb enough to walk for free."

The hiker walked from border to border of each state, except Hawaii and Alaska. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Johnson of Ahoskie, gave him the airfare to hike in the two newest states.

The 6-foot-1 Johnson said his weight was the same at the end of the trip as when he started — 147 pounds.

Johnson said he counted on the good will of friends he met on the journey to provide food and lodging. Houses, barns and even a jail or two served as temporary shelter, but he conceded he spent a few nights under the stars when no hospitality was offered.

In Lida Junction, Nev., Johnson said he even stopped for some hospitality at the Cottontail Ranch brothel.

"I stopped for some soup and some matches, and that's all," says Johnson.

After a week's rest in southern California, he plans to fly back to North Carolina "and work for myself as an electrician," a trade he learned during two years in the Air Force.

"I figure it's about time I started making some money," he said.

Study reveals inaccuracies of commercial tax preparers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Taxpayers who turn to commercial firms in California for help in preparing their taxes have less than a 50-50 chance of having returns computed correctly, says the state Department of Consumer Affairs.

Even when faced with complex tax regulations, consumers "are just as well off taking a crack at it themselves and saving themselves the fee," said Department director Richard Spohn.

Spohn on Monday released the results of a June 1976 study prepared by a private research firm. The researchers posed as private citizens and took sample tax information to 477 tax preparers selected for the study. The completed federal and state returns were checked against models developed by the California Franchise Tax Board, the state tax collection agency. Spohn said that based on that comparison, only three of the 477 preparers correctly completed the returns.

On the basis of the rate of error committed in the samples prepared, the study projected that taxpayers overpaid about $200 million in both state and federal taxes each year.

"Californians are paying tax preparers over $120 million a year, yet may be losing more than $200 million because of the inept services provided," Spohn said.

He said his department planned to meet with both state and federal tax agencies concerning the possible refunding of overpayments.

Release of the study had been held up by a lawsuit filed by West Coast Enterprises, a northern California franchisee of H&R Block, the nation's largest commercial tax preparer.

The suit now has been dropped, Spohn said.

The survey included large commercial tax preparers such as H&R Block, Tax Corporation of America, and the services offered by Sears, Roebuck and Co. and Montgomery

Ward, down to independent operators who work only during the tax season, he said.

The study also concluded that: —Black taxpayers more frequently receive inaccurate tax preparations.

—Charitable contributions were inflated in 20 per cent of the returns surveyed.

—Accuracy of returns was related to the complexity of the applicable tax regulations.

Spohn advised taxpayers to seek help from commercial tax preparers only after getting advice from the Internal Revenue Service and the California Franchise Tax Board.

Claremont development faces review

Preliminary review of a residential unit development of 104 houses on 40 acres between Mills and Bonnie Brae avenues will be conducted by the Claremont Architectural Commission Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

The developer, Standard Pacific Development Co., is seeking comments from the commission on general concepts and concerns about the huge tract.

The tract abuts a proposed Unical tract on the south, and lies across Miramar Avenue from a future school site.

Rosemount Estates' residential unit development matter will be back before the commission which will review architectural and site plans of phases four and five of tract 30342.

The developer had appealed to the City Council the commission's decision that a fourth model be provided for the last two phases of the tract.

The council has returned phase four back to the commission for restudy, and sustained the commission's decision that a fourth model be introduced for the phase of homes fronting on Miramar and Bonnie Brae avenues.

The commission will review a proposed sign for Charisma Carpets at 228 W. Foothill Blvd., and look at a site plan for the GOSH complex landscaping.

The commission also will receive a report on proposed grading plans by Biddle Development, Inc. for a tract at the northwest corner of Claremont Boulevard and Blaisdell Drive.

Residents on Blaisdell Drive had complained to the city about a grading problem along the westerly edge of the subdivision, but Biddle Development, Inc. which bought the land from P. E. Howard Construction, said that it proposes rectifying the situation.

Glomar Explorer hunts for energy?

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Scientists are considering sending the secret CIA vessel Glomar Explorer to the ocean depths once again — this time to hunt for energy.

Marine designers face a Feb. 28 deadline to report to the National Science Foundation their cost estimates for converting the computer-laden spy ship for deep ocean test drilling.

The deep-sea vessel was built by Summa Corp., a holding company of the late Howard Hughes, purportedly to mine mineral deposits from the ocean floor.

The ship actually was built for the CIA to recover submarines and other ships from the ocean bottom. Explorer was used once — in a partially successful attempt to lift a sunken Soviet nuclear sub from three miles down in the Pacific near Hawaii.

"We feel there is a valid use and need for a vessel of this variety. When I say we, I mean the scientific community in general," said Dr. Melvin N.A. Peterson of Scripps Institution of Oceanography, which hopes to obtain the Glomar Explorer for the Deep Sea Drilling Project that he directs.

Peterson and his colleagues think the 36,000-ton Glomar Explorer can be converted to explore the really deep ocean floor not now accessible to man.

Currently, penetrations of the sea floor are impossible beneath more than about 2,000 feet of water. Tests now are being carried out by the Deep Sea Drilling Project's Glomar Challenger, an almost toy-like ship when compared to Explorer.

Peterson says he thinks Explorer can be converted to a ship that would enable scientists to sample crusts of the earth as much as 14,000 feet under water.

By comparison, offshore oil and natural gas drilling rigs today usually go no deeper than 1,000 feet.

The Glomar Explorer could give scientists a look at portions of the ocean floor largely neglected in past studies and could lead to discoveries of oil and natural gas, Peterson said.

Such exploration has been too risky in the past, he said, because a vessel like Challenger has lacked equipment capable of capping a deep undersea hole. Capping is necessary to prevent a blowout when oil is discovered at great depths.

Barricade in Claremont to be discussed tonight

Moving of a street-wide barricade on Santa Barbara Drive to a point just west of an alley will be discussed today at 7:30 p.m. by the Claremont City Council at city hall.

The moving of the barricade is the recommendation of the Claremont Traffic Commission which has heard the pros and cons of the barricade erected the past month on a trial basis.

Now the commission would like the barricade at a second location for about three weeks to find out the effects.

The council will consider a letter from the Nishiki Mt. Baldy Cycling Club requesting permission to hold the second annual Claremont Bicycle Race proposed for Sunday, Aug. 14 in the Village business district.

The council will receive a Planning Commission recommendation that no specific plan be adopted between Claremont Boulevard and Base Line Road for a future Grand Avenue, a four-lane street.

Plane crash

BIG BEAR CITY (AP) — Four persons have been killed when their light plane plowed into a mountain-side 2,000 feet above this ski resort.

A San Bernardino County sheriff's search and rescue team carried the victims away from the wreckage at 2 a.m. today, about 6½ hours after the crash, which occurred a half-mile south of the Snow Summit ski lift.

All the dead were reported to be from the Big Bear area, but sheriff's Sgt. Ted Dykes said names were being withheld until next of kin were notified.

Watson surgery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The doctor treating Los Angeles County Assessor Philip Watson says his patient responded "exceedingly well" to bypass surgery for severe coronary artery disease.

Watson, embroiled in a controversy over rising property taxes, underwent open heart surgery on Monday at St. Francis Hospital in Lynwood. Watson's wife, Superior Court Judge Nancy Watson, was at the hospital during the operation.

His physician, Dr. Albert Attyah, indicated it was possible that the 52-year-old assessor could be out of the hospital in two to three weeks and could resume work in about three months.

Sea rescue

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Coast Guard helicopter set down in 12-foot breakers to pluck three shipwrecked men from the cold Pacific Ocean after patrons in a seaside bar had seen their boat break up.

One of the rescued men was pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital Monday. He was not identified.

Gale Smith, 25, of Saratoga was admitted in serious condition, and John Blacklock, 20, of Campbell was stable.

The survivors told doctors they were in the water for 90 minutes.

Local nurse association provides homemaker-home health services

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Who helps the mother of her first newborn when all other adults in the family work outside of the home?

Who helps the elderly couple who wish to remain in their home rather than enter a nursing home but need assistance with shopping and personal care?

Many valley families no longer live in extended-family groups so when sickness strikes or old age becomes a burden, there is frequently no one to step in and help.

Thanks to a growing number of qualified people who are homemaker-home health aides, families can find assistance.

The Visiting Nurse Association of Pomona-West End is one of seven state agencies which has been approved by the National Council of Homemaker-Home Health Aide Services to provide such services.

The VNA, with headquarters at 5156 Holt Blvd., Montclair has five home health aides and 30 homemakers on its staff, all of whom work under the supervision of registered nurses or other administrative personnel.

The home health aide is highly trained to do paraprofessional skills under the supervision of a registered nurse. Her services to patients in the home are frequently covered by Medicare, Medi-Cal or insurance programs, according to Mrs. Jane Hull, executive director of the VNA.

Homemakers, who handle personal care for shut-ins, do shopping, light household chores or other personal services for families — including the care of infants and children — are only occasionally covered by medical programs.

Mrs. Hull said the homemakers' fee is $5 an hour which covers transportation, insurance and other benefits for the worker.

Each hospital has a discharge coordinator who is available to help patients being discharged. These planners often refer families to the VNA for assistance. Other referrals come from doctors' offices, medical agencies and social services agencies.

Typical of the homemakers is Helen Rogers, a VNA employee for three years. She spends from six to nine hours each week at the home of an elderly couple, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sparks in Claremont, assisting with many household duties and personal care.

Mrs. Sparks can manage with a walker, but is limited in the amount of activity she can do.

"When Mr. Sparks was recently ill with a cold, I shopped for medical supplies and groceries for the couple," Mrs. Rogers said.

Mrs. Hull said that, to qualify for Medicare funds, a home health aide-homemaker service must be licensed by the state.

"Licensing is really the only control to protect the public," she added. There are other licensed agencies in the valley which provide extended home services, but the closest other agency which is a member of the national council is in Long Beach, added Mrs. Hull.

The National Council for Homemaker-Home Health Aide Services, the nonprofit organization which monitors the standards of such agencies, says these services are frequently credited with preventing the breakup of families, the uprooting of children and the necessity for moving chronically ill, disabled and aging people into institutions.

Because those who need these services are often vulnerable — both emotionally and physically — it is imperative that those helping them do so in accord with basic national standards, the national council believes.

The most important of these standards calls for pre-service and on-the-job training of homemakers and home health aides, professional supervision and the services of a professional person who is competent to assess individual and family needs for service and health care, Mrs. Hull reported.

"The need for such care did not exist when families lived in close proximity," said Mrs. Hull. "But now our services are desperately needed. They must be provided in ways which safeguard those who need them."

Mrs. Hull, who serves on a national monitoring committee, says the basic national standards which must be met by qualifying agencies are very stringent.

"Naturally, this protects both the family and our staff members," she added.

Persons wishing to know more about the national council may send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the National Council for Homemaker-Home Health Aide Services, 67 Irving Place, New York, N.Y., 10003, or call the Visiting Nurse Association of Pomona-West End, at 624-3574.

A ceiling on hospital charges?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration plans to ask Congress for authority to impose an across-the-board ceiling on hospital charges as "the first step in making national health insurance financially feasible."

In an explanation of the proposal, submitted today with President Carter's budget recommendations, Carter said that by limiting most hospitals to increases of 9 per cent the government could save $829 million in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. said he believes the 9 per cent figure would be "ample" but that the actual ceiling on charges will be negotiated as the program develops.

The explanation indicated Congress will be sent legislation next month that would give the President power to set the ceiling.

To illustrate the $140-billion annual national cost of health care, the administration proposal said "Americans work approximately one month of the year to pay for their health care" and almost two weeks for hospitals,

Carter to ask Congress for authority which account for 40 per cent of all health costs.

Inflation in the health care field has sent prices up at more than twice the inflation rate for the economy as a whole. But Califano said most Americans don't pay those charges directly and don't notice the increases as much as they would if they were buying goods.

Nearly 90 per cent of hospital charges are paid by Medicare, Medicaid, Blue Cross or health-insurance companies. The increases are passed along in the form of higher taxes to pay for the government programs and increased premiums for the private companies.

The Carter amendments to former President Gerald R. Ford's budget proposals would scuttle Ford's plan to cut Medicaid, child nutrition and several education programs.

President Carter proposed to spend $161.7 billion for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, $2.3

billion more than was called for in the budget Ford sent to Congress just before he left office.

Among the increases sought by Carter:

—$180 million to launch a new program of comprehensive health assessment and treatment for poor children to eventually replace the existing "Early and Periodic Screening" of Medicaid children program, which Califano said "has never worked."

—$15 million listed under the heading "alternatives to abortion." Both Carter and Califano personally oppose abortion, and the new funds would be used to provide family planning services, including contraceptives, particularly to teen-agers where state laws permit. Some of the money would go for sex education and research "in reproduction and normal prenatal development."

—Public school programs for the disadvantaged would get an additional $23 million.

—A total of $25 million would be spent to raise the ceiling on basic grants to needy college students from $1,400 to $1,600 and make "undergraduates from hard-pressed middle income families" eligible for those grants. This would open the program to a half million students from families with incomes of $13,000 to $17,000 a year.

—Supplemental grants and work-study programs for college students would get an additional $370 million, but new funds for the direct 3 per cent student loan program would be cut sharply, forcing colleges to depend on loan repayments to finance new student loans.

—The Carter proposal would scrap the Ford budget's plan to increase Social Security taxes. Califano said a major review of Social Security's financial problems will be undertaken soon and any increases will await completion of that study.

The Ford budget sought authority to collect $1.3 billion in additional payroll taxes.

—A total of $229 million would be restored to a program that permits extended benefits for Social Security recipients' children who attend college.

Rain soaks W. Coast, but not enough

By The Associated Press

Rain and snow from the first storm in weeks has soaked the parched West Coast, and more is expected because the stubborn high pressure ridge blamed for the severe two-year drought has shifted south.

Meteorologists said Monday the ridge moved to Baja California where it normally belongs this time of year, allowing this storm and probably others to penetrate to the coast.

But the weathermen doubted that the storms would bring enough water to make up for the drought which has crippled winter ski resorts, ruined crops in most Western states and forced several California communities to adopt mandatory water rationing.

Snow-bound motorists in the Sierra Nevada and umbrella-toting city dwellers were still welcoming the drought relief late Monday after more than 36 hours of nearly continuous precipitation.

"It looks like we're going to have showers off and on for the next few days," said meteorologist Keith Giles of the National Weather Service.

Giles said he didn't know if the showers signaled a break in the drought, but he added "it's certainly going to help."

California's Marin County, where strict water rationing started Feb. 1, received nearly 1½ inches of rain, but officials said the dry ground soaked up the water without any of the desired runoff.

Up to a foot of snow fell in the Lake Tahoe area, stranding motorists by the hundreds and helping to cover naked ski slopes. The snow, when it melts, also could help fill northern California reservoirs which have been at one-quarter of their normal capacity.

Boy's note put to sea in bottle two years ago crosses ocean

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — When Philip Brown learned that two French girls had found the message he put to sea in a bottle, he was eager to learn how old they were. They were nine. He was disappointed.

"I was kind of hoping, I guess, that they'd be my age," said Philip, who'll be 16 in two weeks.

Still, his seaborne acquaintance with Anne-Lise Bonnet and Marie-Paule Lanco is nothing short of remarkable.

In April 1975, Philip was vacationing with his parents in the Cayman Islands. He printed his name and address on a piece of paper one day, stuck it in a beer bottle and launched it.

"I thought it was a neat idea. Maybe I put a cork in it, but I don't really remember, and I figured it would sink or something," he said Monday.

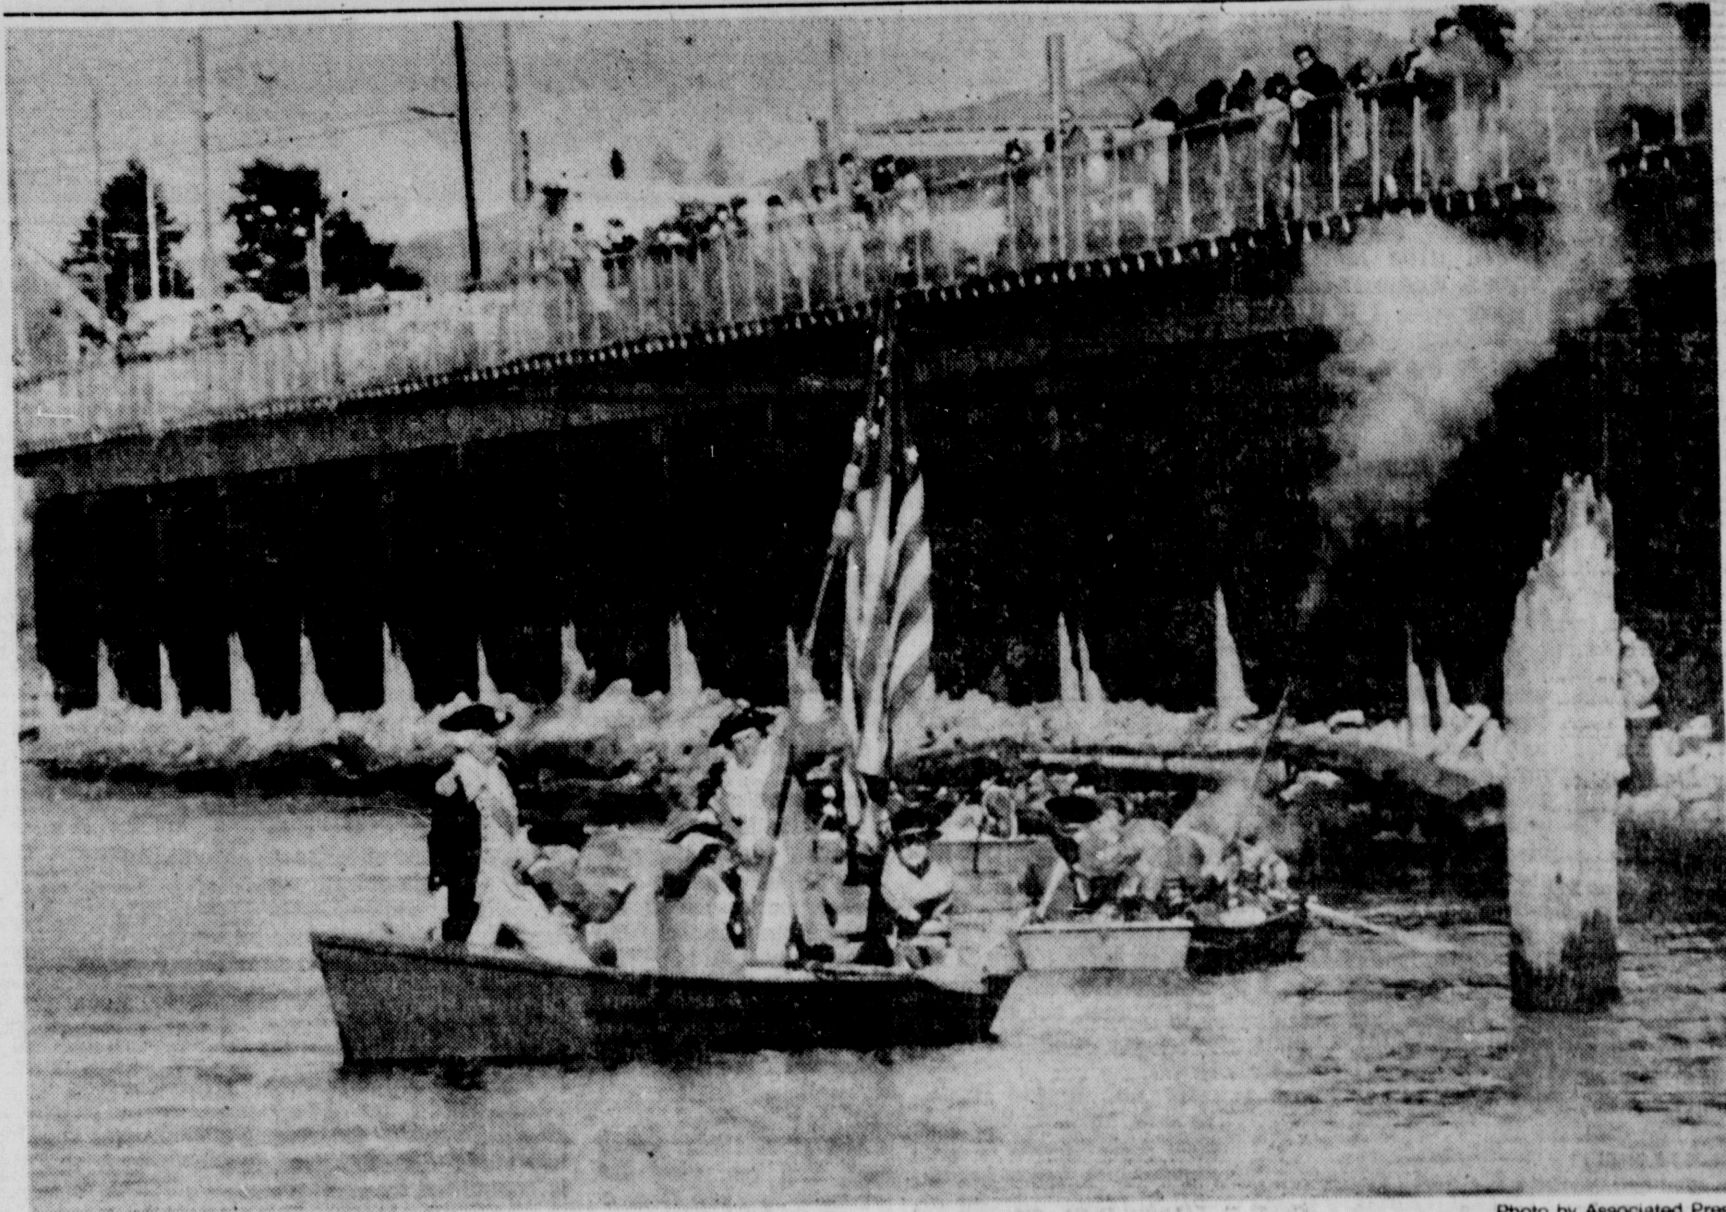

"The Cayman Islands are south of Cuba. I guess the Gulf Stream carried it," he added.

It's 4,500 miles from the Caymans to the French island of Ile de Groix off the Brittany coast, where Anne-Lise and Marie-Paule found the bottle on a beach last Feb. 5, 22 months after it went into the water.

Warnke okayed by Senate panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee today approved President Carter's nominations of Paul C. Warnke to be director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and chief U.S. negotiator at strategic arms limitations talks with the Soviet Union.

In separate actions, the committee voted 15 to 1 for Warnke to head the disarmament agency and 14 to 2 to be chief disarmament negotiator with the Russians.

Amin fired shots that killed bishop?

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — The Tanzanian government's newspaper claims that Ugandan President Idi Amin personally shot and killed Anglican Archbishop Janani Luwum during an interrogation.

In a report attributed to a special correspondent in Kampala, the Ugandan capital, the Daily News said Amin killed the prelate after he repeatedly refused to sign a confession admitting he plotted with former President Milton Obote to overthrow the Ugandan dictator.

The newspaper said Luwum's body was dumped in Lake Victoria along with those of cabinet ministers Erinyo Oryema and Charles Oboth-Ofumbi, who were also accused of taking part in the plot.

Amin claims that the archbishop and the two cabinet ministers died in an automobile crash last Wednesday after their arrest. The widespread belief abroad that the three men were murdered prompted an announcement by Radio Uganda on Monday that Amin would welcome an investigating delegation from any foreign government.

The Tanzanian newspaper's report said after Archbishop Luwum was arrested in Kampala, he was taken to Nakasero Lodge where Amin and several officials were waiting for him. It said after the archbishop repeatedly refused to sign the confession, he was stripped and pinned to the floor.

"Two soldiers in turn whipped the archbishop," the account continued. "While they did so the archbishop uttered prayers, but the prayers seem to have incensed Amin for he angrily shouted wildly in extremely obscene language and struck the archbishop."

Shortly after 8 p.m., the newspaper continued, there were "very bizarre, sacrilegious and obscene activities during which Amin pulled out his pistol and shot the archbishop twice on the left side of the chest."

Luwum's predecessor in Kampala, the Rt. Rev. Leslie Brown, said in London that he had been told by someone in Uganda who saw the archbishop's body that there was a bullet hole on each side of the chest and "he also had been shot in the mouth."

Valley crime

Pomona market robbed

A man armed with a .22-caliber rifle held several customers at bay while robbing the Budget Ranch Market at 445 W. Holt Ave. in Pomona, police said.

The robber, described as a Latin between 30 and 35 years old, entered the store just before 4 p.m. Sunday. He was armed with the rifle and had a red bandana over the lower portion of his face. He ordered an employee to surrender the cash and food stamps and as he fled out the front door he threatened a customer who was entering the store.

Police reported that the gunman was heavy and had a mustache and collar-length hair. He fled to a car driven by a second man whose description was similar.

Three jailed in robbery

Three Pomona men were in jail today, suspects in the robbery of a Pomona service station which occurred Sunday night.

Two of the three were arrested in the 100 block of W. Olive St. and the third was arrested in the 2100 block of Powers Street.

The holdup was at the Mobil Service Station at 2498 S. Garey Ave. The victim, an employee, told police that four men drove in, put $11 worth of gasoline in their car and then one gestured as if he had a pistol in his jacket pocket and demanded money. After getting it, the four drove off.

The suspects were arrested after their car, which matched the description of the car used in the holdup, was involved in a minor traffic accident. They were identified as Stanley Ray Palmer, 19, and Franklin Dean Palmer, 22, both of 1722 Calatana St., Pomona, and Rodney Leon Eaves, 23, of 1257 Colfax St., Pomona.

Bookstore robber wounded?

Sheriff's deputies today continued to search for a man who robbed the Eye-Full Adult Bookstore at 5282 Mission Blvd., Monday night.

The robber may have been wounded by the store clerk, who fired five shots at the fleeing man, they added.

The robber, in his early 20s and wearing a black hat, entered the store with a sawed-off shotgun and confronted the clerk.

After receiving cash from the register, the gunman ordered the clerk to walk to the rear of the building. The clerk complied, then heard the robber turn around and run out the door.

The clerk said he grabbed a revolver and chased the robber to his vehicle. He fired two shots at the gunman and three at the car as it sped away.

Minutes later, deputies found a vehicle matching the description of the gunman's car in a ditch at Ada Avenue and State Street.

Blood was found on the car seat, causing investigators to believe the robber had been wounded.

Deputies searched the area, but failed to find the driver. Officers, however, said the vehicle registration was traced to a Baldwin Park man. They went to the city to investigate.

Hospitals in the valley and Baldwin Park were notified to report any persons seeking treatment of gunshot wounds.

Error in surrender story

A news story which appeared Monday in the Progress Bulletin regarding the surrender of Mike Serrano, wanted for questioning in the double slaying in Cucamonga Saturday, was partially in error.

The San Bernardino County sheriff's homicide bureau had reported the wife of Montclair Police Sgt. Bob Metzger was a distant relative of Serrano. Serrano had called Metzger to surrender.

But the sheriff's office information that Mrs. Metzger was related to the suspect was proved erroneous. Mrs. Metzger is not related to Serrano.

Liquor store held up

A man wearing a ski mask and armed with a sawed-off shotgun robbed the Wine Cellar Liquor Store at 963 E. Holt Blvd., Ontario, Monday night.

Police said the robber entered the store about 9:45 p.m. and ordered the clerk to hand over the cash from the register.

The clerk complied and the robber fled out the door.

Police said the robber was a Latin, 30 to 35, wearing a brown jacket and brown pants. Officers said he spoke only broken English.

$2.8 billion defense cut asked by Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today proposed cutting nearly $2.8 billion from the final Ford administration defense budget, but offered no "radical changes" in military programs or strategy.

The great bulk of Carter's recommended reductions — mostly slowdowns in major missile, bomber, warship, fighter plane and other weapons programs — would affect spending levels in future years. Only $357 million in actual spending would be saved next year.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown said a cut in B1 bomber production from eight to five planes and a year's delay in full-scale development of the big new mobile MX missile would allow time to resolve questions about their value and to weigh "the possibility of further arms limitations agreements" with Russia.

Carter recently offered to refrain from developing a U.S. mobile ICBM if the Russians would refrain from deploying their new SSX20 mobile missile.

Brown did not reject a suggestion that the B1 and MX slowdowns could be interpreted by the Russians as signals. But he stressed there are technical and other reasons apart from SALT negotiation considerations, such as a need to "think through" various concepts for mobile basing of missiles.

The Carter budget cuts would have been deeper, but the President added about $600 million to strengthen the readiness of existing forces by speeding overhaul and repair of ships and planes.

Brazilians holding back coffee supply

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Department cables released today say that Brazilian coffee growers have held back supplies to try to get higher prices from consumers.

Rep. Fred Richmond, D-N.Y., released the cables as two House subcommittees opened hearings into causes for the tripling of coffee prices to American consumers in the last two years.

However, a cable from the American Embassy in Brasilia dated April 20, 1976, said, "Coffee growers and middlemen (and exporters as well) are holding back supplies in expectation of even higher prices."

A Nov. 23, 1976, cable from the U.S. consulate in Rio de Janeiro said, "Brazil will thus expect to resume its coffee sales in the international market at high prices after remaining relatively out of the market for one or two months."

Richmond said the cables show that "the government of Brazil has been conducting a deliberate, pervasive campaign to inflate and artificially maintain coffee prices at record levels."

Widow of Churchill refuses aid

LONDON (AP) — Lady Spencer-Churchill, ailing 91-year-old widow of Britain's World War II leader, today refused all offers to help ease her financial plight.

Legislators urged Prime Minister James Callaghan's Labor government Monday to help her after it was disclosed she plans to sell off family heirlooms to make ends meet.

But in a statement issued by her secretary, Lady Spencer-Churchill said she would "greatly deplore any idea that either special legislation or an appeal should be initiated on her behalf."

News that she has fallen on hard times came Sunday from Sir Winston's grandson and namesake, Conservative member of Parliament Winston Churchill.

Recording for the Blind has expanded its services

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

The change in its services to include physically handicapped persons has increased the demands on the Recording for the Blind by 20 per cent in one year.

According to Stu Carothers, national executive director of RFB, the organization circulated 82,000 taped books to 12,000 blind or handicapped persons in the 50 states and overseas last year.

Carothers, who works out of the national headquarters in New York City, recently addressed workers and guests at the Pomona Valley Unit of the Recording for the Blind at the McAlister Center in Claremont.

"Over 4,500 new books were recorded in 1976 in the 29 studios across the nation," Carothers said. "Touring these centers, I'm constantly impressed by the dedicated, talented and selfless people who donate their time to record books for blind students."

He said that the national library now has over 35,000 book titles available for distribution free of charge.

"Now that the public is starting to learn that we will provide textbooks to people who have problems with reading due to such physical handicaps as muscular dystrophy and cerebral palsy, we can expect the request for books to double in two or three years."

Carothers said this would cause additional budget pressures.

Originally, all books were recorded on open-reel tapes. These tapes were then re-recorded on master tapes for distribution across the country.

"Now we are rapidly converting to cassettes which are more readily shipped and stored."

Carothers said that 60 per cent of the tapes have now been converted to cassettes. He said that, due to the cassettes, the use of books by blind elementary students jumped by 70 per cent last year.

Fearing that fire or another disaster could destroy the master library in New York City, Recording for the Blind has started reproducing the tapes and putting them in an underground storage center in upper New York state.

Books are usually first recorded in the units around the country to meet a specific request by a student for a title needed for class school work.

These are then duplicated, placed in the permanent library, and available to all others asking for the book.

Carothers said one student at Tuft University had depended upon 600 taped books to help him through his undergraduate studies.

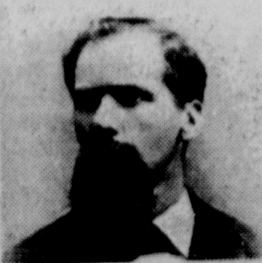

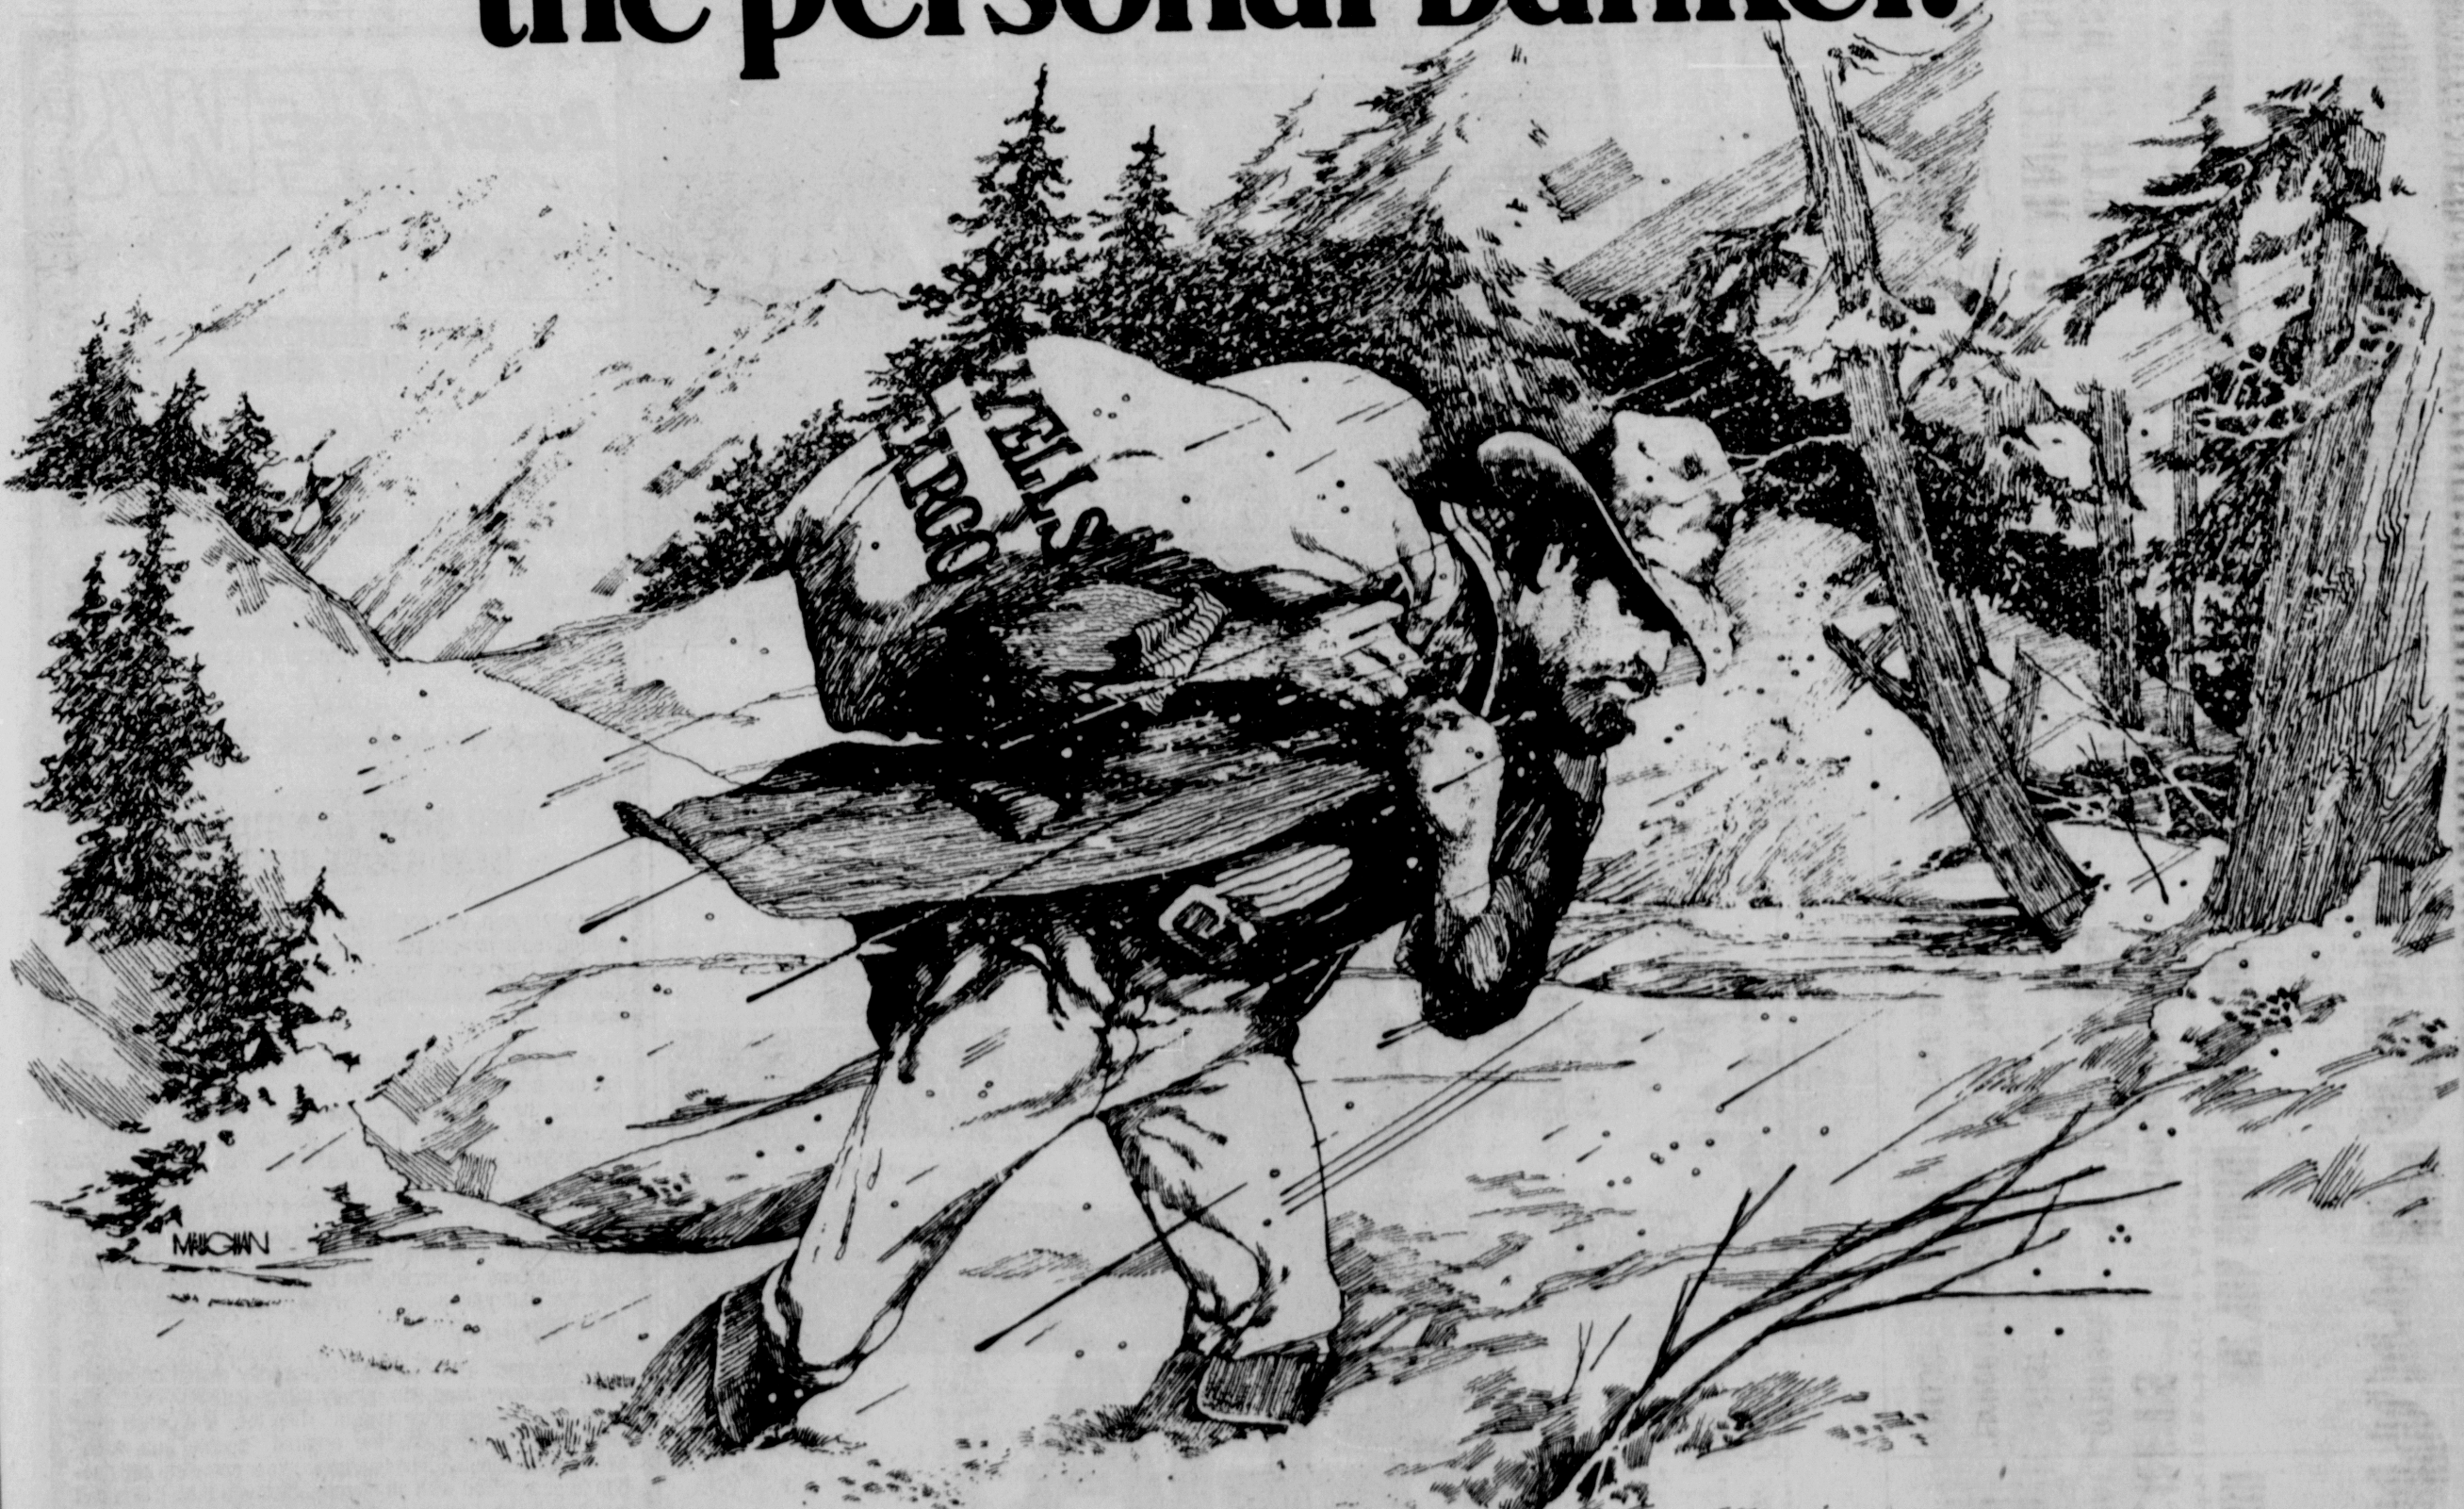

STU CAROTHERS

This student has now entered law school and will continue to use the recorded books, the director added.

Carothers said the organization is now seeking (Turn to page 10, col. 8)

John Valentine

An unexpected snowstorm in the spring of 1864 stopped a Wells Fargo stagecoach in the Sierra Nevada Mountains.

But it didn't stop the mail the coach carried.

Wells Fargo expressman John Valentine picked up the mail sacks and carried them on foot down from the Sierras to the foothill town of Placerville.

One of a handful of men ever to cross the Sierras on foot in snow season, Valentine in later years became president of Wells Fargo.

Hadassah show set

The annual Youth Aliyah luncheon and fashion show will be presented by Eastland Chapter of Hadassah at 11:30 a.m., March 3.

Speaker will be Burt Pines, city attorney of the City of Los Angeles, who will be introduced by Dr. Marvin Ersher, San Dimas mayor.

The Hadassah fashion show provides visual evidence of why some 1,000 young Israelis turn to Hadassah for comprehensive education that can best enable them to contribute to their nation's growth and prosperity.

The show's 25 fashions, made entirely by students, reveal the high quality, relevant career preparation that will assure those enrolled in the Hadassah Comprehensive High School and the Hadassah Community College job placement.

Modeling the tailored suits, dresses, coats, casual and formal evening outfits will be members of the Eastland chapter.

GOP women chart luncheon, speaker

The Chaffey Community Republican Women Federated will meet Wednesday with Mrs. Marian V. LaFollette as speaker. The Magic Lamp Restaurant in Cucamonga will be the setting for the meeting. The social hour will begin at 11:30 a.m. and luncheon will be served at noon.

Mrs. LaFollette, as of Jan. 2, became the director of community relations for Sen. S. I. Hayakawa. Her responsibilities include developing a county-by-county plan for the state and thus enabling the senator to serve his constituents better through a network of community and neighborhood centers.

In the past Mrs. LaFollette served six years as a member of the board of trustees, Los Angeles Community College District. She was the only woman elected in 1969 from a field of 135 candidates. She was re-elected to a four-year term in 1971. She has served as a member and vice chairman of the National Advisory Council for Career Education by appointment of the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, vice chairman of the National Commission of the financing of Postsecondary Education by appointment of the President, and as a member during the initial formative period of the California Commission by appointment of Governor Reagan.

STORY TIME

Eleanor Tishkins, president of the Women's Fellowship at the Claremont United Church of Christ, Congregational, volunteers her time to provide care for small children weekday mornings, freeing mothers for a few hours. More volunteers are needed, Mrs. Tishkins said.

HURRY BACK, MOM

Two-year-old Rebecca Forsheit, in the arms of Irma Jo Salessio, right, supervisor of the nursery at the Claremont United Church of Christ, Congregational, is reluctant to see her mother, Mrs. Arleen Forsheit, left, leave. The child care, offered mornings Tuesday through Friday, frees mothers to do necessary errands, keep appointments and attend meetings.

Child care services provided in Claremont

As a service to mothers of small children, the Claremont United Church of Christ, Congregational, is providing child care services four mornings a week.

This community service, initiated by Mrs. Mary Ellen Kilsby, minister of Christian education at the church, is designed to free mothers for a few hours to allow them to do such things as shop, attend meetings, or keep doctors' or dentists' appointments and know their children are in good hands.

The service is not limited to church members or to Claremont residents. It is being offered valley-wide on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays from 9 a.m. to noon. Infants to 5-year-olds are accepted.

Each mother is asked to call ahead, 626-1724, and let Mrs. Kisly or Irma Jo Salessio, supervisor of the program, know which day she would like to leave a child.

A mother is asked to pay $1 to help pay costs of nutrition provided the children.

The children are cared for in the church nursery at Harvard Avenue and Sixth Street. Currently they are caring for five to 10 children each morning.

Chino police force beefs up city patrol

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

Acting on a directive of the Chino City Council, the Chino police force has beefed up its patrols within the city.

The City Council had requested this action following a recent incident at the Chino Community Building where three persons required hospital treatment after a gang of youths attacked them. One suffered a gunshot wound.

Mayor Bob McLeod called the incident the "last straw" and urged other council members to join him in directing the police force to reduce the steadily increasing "vandalism and brutality" in the city.

"We want to get the hoods and ruffians off the street," declared the mayor.

Since the council directive, the police department's chief officers have attempted to identify the city's problem areas and have instituted the extra patrols where necessary.

Police Chief Jerry Doyle said Mayor McLeod was "reacting to the increase in violence, not only in Chino, but all of the West End of San Bernardino County. They (the City Council) recognize what is happening and want us to do something about it in Chino."

Doyle said the council has authorized 40 to 60 hours of extra patrol time, which will mean $500 to $600 more a week for overtime and for paying reserve officers.

Extra funds allocated by the council wouldn't mean adding more people to the police force. But it would mean stepping up patrol activities, having more cars on the streets, a closer monitoring of known offenders, and coordinating all activities with the deputy district attorney's office, he explained.

But a reduction in crime requested by the City Council is more than just stepping up patrols and keeping a "high profile."

To assist in reducing the crime and violence in the city, the police department is supporting various community programs.

"We have hired Bobby Sedillo to develop programs for the kids who have difficulties. We are supporting the efforts of Los Podrenos — now operating in Riverside, Colton and San Bernardino — which offers day camps and other youth recreation. Los Podrenos can do a great deal to help in Chino," said Doyle.

Progress Bulletin

Pomona, California ■ Tuesday, February 22, 1977

The police chief said his department is also looking at the Project Nexus which diverts delinquent and pre-delinquent youths into the community and creates programs for them.

The city has asked the county to assist in bringing such programs to all the West End cities, he said.

"We are really interested in the youth of the community. We really don't want to arrest any of them."

Doyle said his department is also assisting the city to establish a police community relations committee, made up of leaders from all areas of the community. The committee has its meetings the first Wednesdays of each month.

Valinda fire

A fire which apparently was set deliberately did an estimated $30,000 damage to a vacant house at 531 Dunsview Ave. in Valinda Monday night, sheriff's deputies said.

The interior of the one-story, single-family residence was destroyed and there was some structural damage, fire officials said.

Firemen who arrived first, found the house fully engulfed in flames, but said they managed to put out the blaze quickly.

Agape meal

The Pomona First Christian Church will hold its annual agape meal on Ash Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. in the fellowship hall.

The program provides the congregation with fellowship and communion at the start of Lenten season. Food remaining will be given to various community agencies.

The Rev. Morgan Sly will give a meditation on "At What Cost." The Chancel Choir will sing "Blessed Is The Man."

Family night

Two Garey High School reading classes planning a trip to Washington D.C. this spring will hold a family night at the Pomona Valley Family Fun Center at Seventh Street and Mountain Avenue, Upland tonight from 4 to 10 p.m.

Proceeds from the evening go toward the trip by the school's developmental and remedial reading classes.

Single tickets are $2, family tickets $6. Tickets entitle holders to unlimited use of miniature golf, trampolines, baseball cages and game rooms for six hours.

A correction

A story in the Progress Bulletin Sunday incorrectly stated that teachers in the Claremont School District are seeking a 48 per cent salary increase for the coming school year.

The correct figure is 8 per cent.

German girl seeks place to stay for summer month

An 18-year-old girl from Ostfildern, Germany, wants to spend one month this summer living with a typical American family in Southern California.

Her name is Sieglind Koener. She is being graduated from high school this year. She likes to swim, play piano, draw and read.

She will pay all her own transportation costs, and room and board during her one-month stay. In return, she wants to invite a daughter from her host family to come to Germany next summer and spend a month with her.

Anyone interested in writing to Miss Koener, or learn more about her is asked to call Mrs. Siegfried Munz of Montclair at 624-4434 after 4 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Munz are from Esslinger, Zietung, Germany. They came to Pomona in 1956 and now have a home in Montclair. A story of their new home in "sunny Southern California" ran recently in the Esslinger newspaper.

Miss Koener read it, and wrote the Munz. They plan to return to Esslinger the month of July to visit Munz' mother who now is 76, and whom they have not seen for 17 years.

Pomonan receives burns

A Pomona woman received burns over 10 per cent of her body while attempting to put out a grease fire Sunday afternoon.

Helen Houston, 23, of 1713 Martello St., was trying to control a fire caused by grease ignited on the stove when the grease splattered, causing second degree burns on her left leg, left arm and face.

She was given first aid by Pomona firemen and transported by ambulance to Pomona Valley Community Hospital. She was admitted and is in fair condition.

Fire chief John Fowlkes warned that water will cause grease fires to pop and splatter.

Two slain teen-agers identified

The teen-agers found shot to death Sunday in a Fontana wash were identified today by Fontana police as Linda Bosteder, 15, 8885 JoJo Way, Riverside, and Christopher J. Barber, 16, 8328 Wells St., Riverside. Police said each of the victims had died of a single gunshot wound in the head. San Bernardino County Coroner's office was to have performed autopsies Monday, but results were not available this morning.

Fontana police said there have been no arrests and their investigation is continuing.

Hunters found the bodies at 3 p.m. Sunday. They were about three-fourths of a mile east of East Avenue in Fontana, near the freeway and the railroad tracks.

The girl's body was nude except for socks. The boy's body was fully clothed, police said.

Fontana Police Detective Larry Murray described the slayings as "execution-style."

He said his investigation reveals the teen-agers apparently were killed shortly after they had left home on a hitch-hiking trip to Arizona.

Ironically, he added, both apparently had decided to abort their plan shortly before they were shot. He said the girl had called a friend in Riverside and asked for a ride back home.

They were last seen alive on Thursday when they told their parents they were leaving for Arizona.

Murray estimated the teen-agers had been dead 18 to 48 hours when they were found. He said that because the girl's body had decomposed to such an extent it was impossible to determine if she had been sexually molested.

Special meeting

A special meeting of the Pomona school board to discuss and review district concerns regarding the discipline on the secondary school campuses will be held today at 6 p.m. at Simons Junior High School.

Washington made it work

George Washington could have had anything he wanted at the end of the Revolutionary War, up to and including the title of king. Such was the esteem and veneration in which he was held by Americans.

Even as duly elected president, Washington could have usurped great powers under the untested new Constitution and set the United States on a course directly opposite from that it has taken. He might well have continued in office until his death and set a pattern of self-perpetuation for his successors.

With a bad first president as a model, it is conceivable that future administration changeovers might have become the palace-revolution type so familiar in other countries. We now have a constitutional amendment limiting presidents to two terms. Many feel it is unnecessary and even unwise. But had Washington not established this tradition, as well as the tradition that the nation's highest executive is not above the law, there might be no Constitution at all.

In short, Washington set an example of leadership that has played an incalculably important part in making this country what it is today. That the ideal of democracy on which the nation was founded has survived and flourished for 187 years is testimony to the direction and impetus given it by Washington.

Why did this man shy away from power and self-aggrandizement? Other leaders in history, more brilliant than he, had started with idealism and ended in despotism. Some have begun in devotion to their people and ended with the conviction that they alone were qualified to rule.

Washington himself would have answered that he did not desire to rule over others (though paradoxically, as a product of his times and mores, he was absolute master over others who happened to be black). He was a country gentleman, a student of gracious living, an aristocrat in the best meaning of the term.

But this was not the attitude of a man concerned only with his own life, his own comforts. Quite the opposite.

Like the other great men who were his contemporaries, Washington knew the world's sad history of injustice and oppression. When he and they gathered in Annapolis in the summer of 1787 to write the Constitution, they distilled into that document all the wisdom that could be gained from the lessons of the past. Few of them, however, were confident that the unprecedented experiment in self-government would work.

Washington made it work. He brought to his office a deep sense of responsibility toward the new nation in particular and the human race in general. He possessed the kind of humility only truly great men possess. He was, indeed, the Father of His Country.

All work and no...

More Americans are working than ever before, even in a time of high unemployment, yet they are working less and less.

The Bureau of National Affairs, a private publisher of specialized information services, reports that of some 200 companies it recently surveyed, more than half have added new paid holidays in the past two years.

The most popular is the "floating holiday," which an employee may take on a day of his choosing. By virtue of many union contracts, this is the employee's birthday. Christmas Eve and the day after Thanksgiving have also increased markedly in frequency as holidays.

All of the companies surveyed give their employees at least five paid holidays a year, and more than half provide at least 10. The largest number of paid holidays was 15. And for work performed on a holiday, pay at double time and a half seems to be becoming the norm.

In addition, more than a quarter of the companies have liberalized their vacation policies, usually by lowering the number of years of service required, and others say they plan to do so in the coming year.

Joyce Hifler

Think on these things

Be very careful of those things you are so deadset against — presented in a different light they can become most acceptable.

Almost everything is judged by the way it is presented. The words, the tone, the mental picture all are a part of the stage on which an idea is played out to us. What we approve of at one time we can't tolerate at another — and that which seemed foolish suddenly appears to have some merit.

There are ways constantly being devised to reach us, to lead us down this path or that — and we must have the wisdom to choose — the courage to change our minds.

Second coup of the century

Dear Editor:

Like a good many people in this country, I've been in a state of shock for the past few years. I've heard respected members of different news media, including Cronkite and Brinkley, say "Watergate" in the same hushed tones that one would use describing a leperous lesion and I wonder if these men even remember what Watergate was.

It was a tapped telephone that involved nothing classified and nothing involving our national security. Just Democratic campaign strategy. I had been a registered Democrat since I was 18 when I voted for Adlai Stevenson. I was a lot more concerned with what the Democrats were trying to cover up than I was with what the Republicans found out.

Evidently the Democrats were frightened enough or successful enough because with totally irrelevant propaganda they destroyed an entire governmental regime. Be that as it may — it's done.

Now, for two years I have watched the people of this country spoon-fed hundreds of hours of utter claptrap.

I'm a native Georgian, descended from a petty thief delivered into Georgia in 1733. So, my family has been around for awhile. That noble ancestor of mine promptly got as far from Savannah as he could and settled what is now Macon County, no doubt preferring swamp, mosquitos, rattlers and cotton mouths over a return voyage to England.

The close-knit and proud southern aristocracy of the Deep South are all descended from that boat load of petty thieves and debtors.

I'm not going to re-run "Gone With the Wind," but people struggled and rebuilt farms and grew a little bit of everything on a farm. Not just one crop. However, I'm rambling. Having known and being related to a good 20 per cent of the people in the area, I have grown angrier and angrier seeing how television pulled off the second coup of the century.

A few pulp pine do not a forest make. A garden does not a farm create, and a tin warehouse that other people store their crops in does not a tycoon develop.

The Carters are a respected family and decent people but Jimmy Carter is not a gentleman farmer nor the owner of a tara-like plantation. In fact, politics offers a great avenue of escape from farming on a farm that isn't big enough to make a living off or from.

Ambitious men want success and glory and there isn't much glory in a garden unless it's the morning variety. Never again will I believe anything I see on TV that either creates or destroys a man.

The Democrats and/or network newsmen destroyed one man and handpicked his successor and elected him by creating in the minds of the American voters a cross between Rhett Butler and Ashley Wilkes — if such a man exists. It ain't Jimmy Carter, y'all.

Henceforth, I'll stick to the newspapers for my politicking, TV for my violence, and since '72, Republicans for my president. In fact, I may even run for president — I have all the media requirements, membership in the DAR, UDC, a Georgia drawl, a toothy grin. I've been busted and I have lusted.

Tip O'Neill no reformist

WASHINGTON — House Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill has emerged as the unlikely leader of a new generation of reform-minded Democrats. But the big, rumped Irishman continues to practice the hardball politics he learned years ago in the backrooms of Boston.

Standing 6 foot 2 and weighing 220 pounds, he has now become a massive presence in the backrooms of Washington. He has three basic beliefs: the Catholic faith, the Democratic Party and his divine right to make political deals.

Already, he has chewed out President Jimmy Carter for failing to consult him before appointing Elliot Richardson as a maritime negotiator. It seems that Richardson may run against O'Neill's son for governor of Massachusetts.

The hulking, bulbous-nosed O'Neill then showed down the president's throat a Massachusetts crony, Robert Griffin, as the deputy General Services administrator. This led to the angry resignation of Administrator Jack Eckerd, a Republican, who has tried to clean up the agency.

Privately, the speaker takes a jaundiced view of reforms. When the House reformers wanted to strip Rep. Robert Sikes, D-Fla., of his subcommittee chairmanship of a conflict of interest, for example, O'Neill supported Sikes, who lost anyway.

Nor is O'Neill greatly aggrieved over the Korean bribery scandals. Indeed, he was at the front of the line of congressmen who accepted favors from Korean fixer Tongson Park. "I'm against any deal I'm not in on," O'Neill has said.

O'Neill is at his best in a smoke-filled backroom: it is his natural environment. Always affable, he can also be roguish and irreverent. Once he toasted a stuffy senator, to the roaring delight of the other guests, as "the second-nastiest drunk in town."

The speaker courts his colleagues with all the finesse of a friendly grizzly bear. He will hug them to his bosom, but those who aren't suffocated by his embrace may hear his growl. He used both techniques to prod former Speaker Carl Albert into stepping down early.

As an example of O'Neill inaction, he helped Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., nose out Rep. Phil Burton, D-Calif., as House majority leader. Then the speaker tried to better up the funding Burton by appointing him chairman of the House delegation to the North Atlantic Assembly.

This outraged Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., who felt he was in line for the prestigious chairmanship. As head of the International Relations Committee, he was entitled to lead the delegation.

Angrily, he protested to the speaker. Like a father lecturing a misbehaving child, O'Neill admonished Zablocki: "You've been on the delegation three months. Phil's been on six years. He can do the job."

"But it should go to the International Relations chairman," insisted Zablocki. "I feel as chairman of the committee I should be chairman of the delegation."

"Look," growled O'Neill, "they (the other North Atlantic legislators) will be honored to have the chairman of the International Relations committee on the delegation."

Zablocki, his moustache bristling, shot back petulantly: "I'm going to resign from the delegation."

The congressman has now simmered down somewhat, and O'Neill hasn't accepted his resignation. The speaker told us he thinks time will heal Zablocki's bruised feelings. Zablocki, meanwhile, feels any reconciliation should be offered by O'Neill.

The incident serves to illustrate the speaker's political style. Some members feel the backslapping Boston pol may not be exactly the shining image of reform the House is now trying to present.

SUGGESTION BOX: More than a year ago, we established the National Suggestion Box to receive the ideas of individual Americans. It was time, we urged, that the voice of the individual be heard in Washington. Now President Jimmy Carter has called for suggestions so he can stay close to the concerns of the people.

Thousands of suggestions have poured into the National Suggestion Box from as far away as Brazil, Mexico and the East Carolinian Islands. There have been suggestions from all 50 states — 25.5 per cent from the Middle Atlantic and 24 per cent from the Pacific. A smaller 12.4 per cent came from President Carter's native South.

Suggestions should be mailed to the National Suggestion Box, Box 2000, Washington, D.C. 20013. Meanwhile, here is one of the latest suggestions:

Kennedy Ward writes from New Bern, N.C., that Americans could help save energy by recycling their used oil. "Many individuals would return the old oil if they had some place to take it," Ward urges. He suggests that oil be sold in returnable containers and that anyone not returning the old oil be charged a higher price.

We're told that a similar system is being used successfully in Germany. Meanwhile, the Interior Dept. tells us that gas stations in Cincinnati and Minneapolis already are being used as collection points for waste oil. Car owners who change their own oil should check to see whether their local service station has a used-oil tank.

The Federal Energy Administration estimates that recycling of used oil would reduce oil imports by about 70,000 barrels a day.

OILING THE WHEELS — Senate Finance Chairman Russell Long, D-La., the unabashed champion of the oil and gas interests, beat back an attempt last month to curb his power.

Afterward, the grateful Long dispatched private letters to the senators who supported him. He was "very grateful," he wrote, that the senators had let the committee and "me as chairman" continue to use "our best judgment" on tax matters. Added Long: "You will not be disappointed."

A spokesman for the senator was aghast at the thought that Long might be hinting he will return the favor from his well oiled resources.

CHIMNEY WASTE — A small device that could cut residential gas consumption by 20 per cent to 30 per cent is being kept off the market by the American Gas Association. The inexpensive device could save our energy-starved nation the equivalent of 500,000 barrels of oil a day.

The Michigan Consolidated Gas Company has developed the device, which costs about $35 to install in old furnaces. One part restricts the size of the flue, the other reduces the flame in oversized furnaces. In Michigan, where many chimneys are 40 times too large, the device cut homeowners' gas bills by 26 per cent.

But no one can buy the device because the American Gas Association won't approve it. A spokesman said the association has no authority to approve the device until it has been brought before the proper committee.

Doc Peirsol Just in jest

The don't do as we do, do as we say formula for operating national government can best be illustrated by what's not happening in the pollution control efforts of our National Air Resources Board. Oh sure, they crack down in no uncertain terms on motorists and industry. But, in the meantime, I defy you to drive along Highway 5 through Orange County without witnessing dozens of mile long streaks of black poisonous airplane exhaust pollution streaming out behind the training planes flying out of El Toro.

Drought will drain surplus

By EARL G. WATERS

The great plans of Gov. Jerry Brown and others in the legislature to use a treasury surplus, estimated variously as between $800 million and double that, to alleviate the school finance and property tax problems may come crashing down as the result of the continued drought.

With the reservoirs drained and small prospects for anything approaching "normal" rainfalls and snowpacks to replenish them, predictions are that agriculture will take a severe economic beating this year. Losses are seen as reaching more than $3 billion in crops alone.

Although, as one Senate economist and tax expert pointed out, agricultural crops alone don't produce tax revenues for the state, they do create farm and food processing payrolls, and have other impacts on the overall economy.

And drought conditions will also materially affect the tourist and recreational economy which does produce tax revenues as well as provide employment. They may also necessitate rationing of water to reduce industrial output, further lowering state revenues and employment.

Exactly what the future for this and next year may hold, unrelieved by healthy precipitation, is conjectural at the moment. But the drought could well erode the rosy surpluses projected last October by the Finance Department. Not only could the treasury suddenly become empty because of revenue drops but widespread unemployment and welfare needs could create a need for increased taxes.

The realization that the annual budget review has suddenly become far more than the simple determination of whether requests are for reasonable purposes has not escaped Senate Finance Chairman Al Rodda. It now becomes a question of whether budget items are absolutely essential.

Rodda is calling for re-evaluations of the state's economy for the immediate future in terms of the best predictions as to the effects of both the present and a prolonged drought.

To that end he is seeking advice from the Finance Department, Board of Equalization, Franchise Tax Board and other agencies responsible for revenues and finance. It does not take any experts, however, to recognize that the drought of last year and this winter have already knocked the economy for a loop. Even if the state were now to experience a "late winter," serious damage has already been done. And unseasonal storms might be a mixed blessing, causing further harm along with a modicum of relief.

Certainly the drought will cause a drastic revision of thinking with regards to means of providing property tax relief and methods of complying with the Serrano school financing ruling.

To the extent that it will compel the legislature to attack the heart of those problems rather than avoid the basic reforms which are indicated by utilizing surpluses in a "band-aid" approach to take the heat off, the drought is fortuitous.

It also serves the purpose of bringing state government to its knees by eliminating the surpluses which inspire new and continuing programs. Excepting for the federal government which can spend money it doesn't have, budget deficits are still the best reins to control government spending.

Tail of the dignified rat

DEAR DR. MILLER: Ferdie, my mouse, doesn't mind being picked up by his tail. Reginald, my rat, hates it if I pick him up that way. Are rats so much more dignified, or what? — D.V.

DEAR D.V.: Reginald's resentment is probably partially related to his more dignified demeanor, but also because he's considerably heavier, and so dangling is less comfortable for him. Use his tail, if you must, but hold near the base then, presuming he's not too resentful, gently lift him onto your hand or other nearby surface.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We lost our cat after his bladder got infected and blocked up. It was a terribly sad thing. We've since discovered neighbors who've lost, or almost lost, their male cats with the same terrible thing. We can't stand to be without a cat, but we're thinking of getting a female, and having her spayed, instead of getting a male. We've heard that only male cats have this terrible bladder thing. Is this true? — O.R.

DEAR O.R.: On the average, the female feline (neutered) makes a healthier pet than the male. She's less inclined to roam and thus be exposed to and possibly pick up some types of infections. She also has fewer bite wounds (and related complications) as she's less likely to fight or be territorial. And you're right, she doesn't suffer from the blocked bladder syndrome seen in male cats. I'm not implying the female doesn't have bladder problems.

In fact, cystitis, (inflamed/infected bladder) problems, are not uncommon in female cats. The important difference is that the female cat has the anatomic advantage of a wider passageway out from the bladder which does not (as in the male) become easily blocked.

DEAR DR. MILLER: A friend who has raised a coyote in connection with a scientific study said that when it gets mad now it lowers its head and opens its mouth wide. When it was still a puppy and got mad, it would growl, like a dog. Why doesn't it growl anymore? — J.O.

DEAR J.O.: This behavior pattern is typical for members of the wild dog family, including coyotes and wolves. In these animals, snarling is an immature behavior pattern which is replaced, when they are adults, by the open-mouthed threat gestures. (In the wild, the silent threat could be an advantage from the survival standpoint.) Since the typical threat pattern is an inherited, rather than a learned component, it's possible that in domestic dogs the mature development of the threat posture, an open-mouthed gape, has been lost in breeding, and only the immature snarl remains.

Ann Landers

An answer to 'Empty Shell'

Dear Ann Landers: This is for "Empty Shell," the wife who is worried about her sex life because she had a hysterectomy. I'm glad you told her to quit asking her husband if everything is OK. Honestly, some women can be so dumb!

I had the same operation six years ago and the only real change is that I no longer worry about getting pregnant.

My car is almost ten years old. Sometimes it doesn't start as quickly as it did when it was new. My husband is 45. He doesn't start as quickly as he did when I first got him, either. But he's still great.

When he does have a problem we relax and forget it. We never try to analyze his "failures." We just love each other, is all. — Content

Dear Content: Your letter makes better sense than a pile of "How To" manuals. I hope all women who consider themselves "Empty Shells" because they had hysterectomies will take notice and shape up.

Dear Ann: Your comments about taking the car keys away from a friend who is drunk really hit home. I had to take the car keys away from my father, not because he drank but because, at 78, he was a menace behind the wheel of a car. He was furious, but I knew what had to be done and I did it.

Last spring, Dad had an accident. I phoned the police and begged them to revoke his license. They said they couldn't, but that they would re-test him. Would you believe he passed the test? I was horrified. One look at his car — dented fenders, crooked headlights and bumpers — should have told them something.

I'll probably fight too, when the time comes, but having gone through it, I hope I'll be able to accept the decision gracefully. — L.G. In Newark

Dear L.G.: It's hard to tell a driver who passed his test that he is not competent to drive. It's difficult, too, to use age as a criterion. Some 82-year-olds drive better than many teenagers.

But if you are sure Gramps is endangering himself and others, I salute you for your gutsy stand. Perhaps your letter will give others a shot of courage.

Dear Ann: My husband is in the plumbing and heating business. Recently a "friend" asked Oscar to install the heating and plumbing equipment in his new house.

Oscar put in many long hours and believe me, this is not easy work. When the job was finished, the "friend" shook Oscar's hand and said, "Thanks, pal. That was real nice of you."

I want Oscar to mail the jerk a bill for $500. That's what the job was worth. He says he can't do it. What is your advice? — Burned Up Wife

Dear Burned: Of course your husband should be paid for his work, but the time to have discussed that subject was BEFORE the work was done. Oscar can (and should) ask for compensation, but chances are he'll get a lot less now that the job has been completed. (You're calling the wrong guy "jerk.")

CONFIDENTIAL to Torn and Conflicted: Your values need overhauling. Too bad your "rich cousins" made such an impact on your early thinking. If you want to know what God thinks of money just look at some of the people he gave it to.

Gossip: it isn't all bad

At midnight on New Year's eve, my friend and I put our left hand over the phonebook, raised our right hand and solemnly swore that from this day forward we would no longer gossip about our friends, so help us Rona Barrett.

We have not carried on a conversation longer than a minute and a half since.

The other day I couldn't stand it. "You know what's wrong with you?" I snapped. "You're a boring, shallow, uninteresting person."

"I hope you said that with love," she smiled wryly.

"I am sick of being good. Thanks to you I have lost all of my friends. How do you think I feel, sitting there around viciousness and not being able to join in? I feel like someone clipped my tongue."

"Look," she said, "we agreed if we couldn't say anything nice about anyone, we'd say nothing."

"Exactly. Do you know what it's like to sit around and talk about static electricity from your panty hose for three months?"

"We didn't agree not to discuss anyone. We just said we'd have to present them in a good light. Now, let's try to carry on a conversation. Did you hear they gave a surprise birthday party for Kay last week?"

I thought for a moment. "Did she show up for it?"

"Yes, why?"

"I'm glad. The poor dear hasn't shown up for her last eight birthdays. But she is a good mother. We saw her in church last Sunday with her children."

My friend measured her words carefully. "For that she should be canonized. If the Good Lord had meant for Kay to take her children to church, He would have put a john at the end of every pew."

"True. I hear she's very happy about her pregnancy."

"Who wouldn't be? She's almost assured of a PTA presidency with her 27 years experience."

"Yes, wonderful, wonderful Kay. She could find fun laundering dust balls."

"Speaking of dust, have you heard from wonderful Ethel lately? I do admire anyone who can sort the priorities in her life and put them in perspective. Is she still playing the ponies?"

"I think so. You know we've been talking for ten minutes or so and not once have we been vicious. You see how easy it is not to talk about our friends?"

"Yeah, but next year it's going to be harder. We're going to include the word, 'whisper.'"

Medicine causes impotence

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband, age 40, suffers from hypertension. He is taking Hygroton. The trouble is the medication has the side effect of decreasing his sexual urge. His libido is non-existent. It did not happen suddenly. It has been getting worse year by year.

Before he started taking this medication our sexual relationship was excellent and exciting. I have been very patient, knowing that his life probably depends on his controlling his blood pressure. How long must he be on this medication? All his life? If so, what can we do to improve our sexual relations?

DEAR READER — Hygroton and some other medicines used in treating high blood pressure can cause impotence. Your husband should talk with his doctor about this and see if he can switch him to a medicine or a program that is less likely to cause this side effect.

A lot of the medicines that are so effective in controlling high blood pressure also have undesirable side effects. Sometimes a patient has to live with the side effects in order to live at all but as long as there are alternatives it is better to take the alternative.

The most important alternative is weight control. If your husband has one ounce of fat under his skin around his waist get him on a diet and walking program that enables him to lose weight gradually and sensibly. Adequate weight reduction often does wonders to control high blood pressure.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-8, Blood Pressure, to give you more information on what controls it. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY

"Women's lib is of value if it teaches women to be self-reliant and courageous, but there's no point in having a women's lib movement without larger changes in society. Sontag struggles for draw

JAMES JACOBY

There is nothing sensational about this hand played by Alan Sontag in a team match. It just happened that he was playing against Benito Garozzo and Pietro Forquet, one of the strongest pairs in the world, and they found the toughest possible defense.

They started with three rounds of hearts. Alan ruffed the third lead in dummy, came to his hand with the king of diamonds and lost a trump finesse to East's queen. Back came a fourth heart. Alan had to trump this one in his own hand. Then he led a spade to dummy's ace, returned to his hand with the ace of clubs, led his king of trumps to pull East's 10 spot and played the jack of diamonds.

We'll let Alan finish the story. "I needed the last four tricks to make the contract. I could rise with dummy's ace of diamonds, trump a diamond and be home if diamonds were 3-3 or the queen had dropped doubleton. Usually I am a fast player. But this time I thought ten minutes, finally decided that West had been dealt four diamonds to the queen, let my jack ride and made the hand. It was a split board. At the other table a diamond was opened and declarer had no problems."

Sun tracker for solar heat

You say you're still trying to make your fortune, young fellow? Nothing to it. Solar heating panels the size of house doors are selling for something in the neighborhood of $1,000 now. Typically, they are laid out on the southern slope of pitched roofs. Some, though, are merely mounted in frames on the ground. They're only most efficient for a relatively short time of day, that time when they face directly perpendicular to the sun. What's needed is a geared swiveling platform that lets them move as the sun moves. To catch its strongest direct rays from dawn to dusk. An electric-eye type homing device that could lock on the sun itself might control the thing. Or possibly a simple clock mechanism set in sync with the sun's trip. Conceive it, design it, build a model, and patent it. You'll get rich. Eventually.

FIRST NAVY

Q. "What was the first country to have a navy?"
A. Assyria, probably. In the 700s B.C. there, King Sennacherib organized what's thought to have been the first fleet to carry armed men.

Q. "Besides whales and porpoises, what other marine mammals breed in the sea?"
A. None other.

Q. "Are any sewing machine needles made in this country?"
A. Now maybe, not sure. Do know they were all made in such places as Japan and Germany some years back.

PROPER JOB CLUB

"Your Proper Job Club committee should consider this: At the University of Texas at Austin last summer, I needed permission from campus police to use a gun in a show I was directing. Officer Derringer suggested I call headquarters. Sgt. Gunn answer and said Captain Canon wasn't in, but since I'd notified them, go ahead." — Floyd B. Inks III

To that redundancies list, add "fill it up," please.

"Nth" is not the only word in the English language that contains no vowel, I'm told. "Crwth" meaning "the crowd," is likewise such a word. So is "cwm," which is the name for an indented valley on a mountain that's shaped like half a bowl.

Marine law is such that a ship may be judged "unseaworthy" not necessarily because there's anything wrong with the ship itself, but even because there may be something wrong with the officers or crewmen or whatever. In one case, a brutal mate was ruled responsible for a ship's unseaworthy condition. In another, the fact that the Chinese crew couldn't understand the officers' orders made that ship unseaworthy.

CCAA faces big uproar

The California Collegiate Athletic Association is a top-flight league as far as basketball competition is concerned.

There is probably no other league in the nation on the Division II level which has the races the CCAA enjoys every season.

But leadership on the top is missing.

Because of it, the future of the CCAA is clouded.

The league already has dropped to nothing in football (three members), baseball (four members) and track (six members but really only four providing much competition).

Last week's news of Cal State Los Angeles having to forfeit all of its basketball wins both this season and last because center Will Roberts was declared ineligible may have some far-reaching affects.

According to all the evidence, the decision by the CCAA's executive committee was correct in ruling the forfeits because of a violation of the NCAA and conference transfer rule.

The big question is why did it take so long?

Roberts was nearing the end of his senior season when this whole thing came up.

After attending East Los Angeles College for two years, Roberts reportedly enrolled at Texas A&I in January of 1975 but dropped out and entered Cal State Los Angeles in September.

Roberts played the entire 1975-76 season and all of the current campaign until last week when all of a sudden the Diablos were stripped of their first place standing (5-2) in the CCAA standings.

UC Riverside coach Freddie Goss started the inquiry because he knew all about Roberts' case since he tried to recruit him.

But UCR waited until the situation would help their standing in the race before taking action.

It would have been far better if knowledge of Roberts being ineligible was brought before the conference when he first started playing last season.

Now a co-champion

Cal Poly Pomona is now the official basketball co-champion with Cal State Bakersfield for the 1975-76 season because of an extra win picked up by a forfeit.

While the co-championship will look good for Poly in history books, it doesn't mean much as far as last year's players are concerned. And it could have cost the Broncos a trip to the NCAA playoffs which they made anyway as a strong second place team.

It isn't fair to the student-athletes of all six member schools to keep information like that secret until it serves a particular purpose.

This move could kill the CCAA.

Under orders from athletic director John Hermann, Cal State Los Angeles officials are staying quiet about the entire incident until the season is over.

Hermann said the university will make an official announcement when the CCAA race is complete.

It could be very interesting.

There is also talk UC Riverside might be leaving the CCAA to jump up to the Division I level.

NOTES FROM HERE AND THERE:

Cal Poly is quite excited about the quality and quantity of its football recruiting with several top prospects signing national letters of intent to attend Poly.

But it is best to wait for actual enrollments before there can be any celebrations in the football offices.

Even though these players have signed letters, they still can enroll at community colleges.

So it's not over yet by any means.

Two local products will be with the San Diego Padres when they open spring training Saturday at Yuma, Ariz.

Pitcher Vic Bernal of Cal Poly and infielder Harold Drake of Bonita High are among eight non-roster hopefuls joining the official 37-man roster.

Bernal, a righthander, led the Class AA Texas League in saves last year with 19 in helping Amarillo win the championship. Drake, a versatile star in all sports at Bonita, hit .279 with nine home runs and 66 RBIs for Reno in the Class A California League.

Several local products are included in Baseball Digest's reports on top rookie candidates this season.

Included are Willie Norwood (La Verne College) with the Twins, Wayne Gross (Cal Poly) with the A's, Paul Moskau (Azusa Pacific) with the Reds, Mithcell Page (Poly) with the Pirates and Bernal.

Defense wins NBA games

NEW YORK (AP) — Slamunks, 25-foot jumpers and behind-the-back passes draw oohs and aahs from the crowd, but defense wins games in the National Basketball Association.

"You have to play defense to be a good team in this league," says Coach Al Attles of the Golden State Warriors. "Defense wins more games than anything else."

Attles should know. His club displayed aggressive full-court pressure and a tenacious team defense in winning the NBA title in 1975, but since has stumbled. This year the Warriors rank 17th in the league, allowing 108.9 points per game, and their defensive lapses have been blamed for their drop to third place in the Pacific Division.

Of course, defensive statistics must be taken with a grain of salt. A team may allow relatively few points because it plays a patient style of offense rather than because of any particular defensive prowess. The Chicago Bulls lead the league in defense, giving up just 98.9 points per game, but that figure is aided considerably by the Bulls' slow, pattern offense.

Zone defenses are illegal in the NBA, but that doesn't mean clubs expect their men to stop each other one-on-one. A successful pro defense is based on teamwork, where one player helps out another.

The Boston Celtics, with Bill Russell, exemplified that kind of team defense during the 1960s. And the New York Knicks, led by Willis Reed and Dave DeBusschere, used it to win NBA titles in 1970 and 1973.

"Team defense is a key every night you play basketball," said Knicks Coach Red Holzman. "I don't think any team can really have a defensive concept based on going one-on-one, because the offensive talents of the players these days are so great. If you just go head-to-head, they'll kill you."

The Knicks have been unable to develop a steady team defense this season, which is why despite the acquisition of a super-scorer like Bob McAdoo they are playing sub-500 ball.

"The Knicks' concept is always supposed to be team defense," said Holzman. "We're always working towards it, but obviously we haven't achieved it."

The basic component of a strong team defense is a dominating center, a player who can clog the middle and prevent opposing players from driving to the basket. Russell performed that function for the Celtics and Reed played that role with the Knicks. Currently, the best at it are Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Los Angeles, Bill Walton of Portland and Artis Gilmore of Chicago.

To take fullest advantage of a dominating center, you have to keep him stationed near the basket. This occasionally runs afoul of the NBA rule against zones, which says a defensive player must be guarding someone "who is approximately six to eight feet from the basket."

But generally speaking, a team can get away with having its big center slough off towards the basket, as Portland Coach Jack Ramsay explains.

"Walton obviously helps other players in our defense and we have a lot of switching," Ramsay said. "But Bill is always assigned to a man. That man often is playing near the basket, so naturally Bill is under there, too."

Of the four division leaders, three rank among the top seven defensive clubs in the league. Washington is fifth at 104.1, Los Angeles sixth at 104.3 and Philadelphia seventh at 104.4. The other division leader, Denver, has perhaps the league's top individual defensive player in forward Bobby Jones, but is only 12th in team

Finley, Kuhn at war again

CHICAGO (AP) — Charles O. Finley, baseball's maverick owner, thinks he finally has the other club owners on his side in his latest clash with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn over a big money deal.

The Oakland A's boss, who has one lawsuit pending against Kuhn, has threatened to sue him again if he blocks the sale of relief pitcher Paul Lindblad to Texas for $400,000.

And this time, Finley says, his fellow owners would let the commissioner stand alone and not vote to indemnify him if Finley sues and wins.

"He hasn't got the courage or guts to cancel this deal," Finley said Monday. "He knows that the owners in baseball will not vote to indemnify him this time."

Finley still is seething over Kuhn's decision June 18 voiding the sales of three Oakland stars for $3.5 million. He sued Kuhn for that amount, but the owners voted to share the losses if Finley wins.

"Enough league owners realize they made a mistake in voting to indemnify him," Finley said Monday. "He knows he's in the wrong ... Don't be concerned about Bowie Kuhn canceling this deal."

He said Lindblad also might sue if Kuhn blocks the sale.

Kuhn had no comment on Finley's statements.

The commissioner is planning a hearing on the sale of the 35-year-old Lindblad, a Texas resident, to the Rangers. But Finley has set a condition for his attendance.

"My attorney has made a request to the commissioner to outline in writing what the purpose of the meeting is before we agree to come in," said Finley.

If Kuhn does not meet the condition, Finley says he will stay away. If Kuhn complies and the answer satisfies Finley, "we'll be there with bells on," the A's owner says.

A spokesman for Kuhn says the commissioner will not approve the sale of Lindblad, a 12-year major league veteran, until after a hearing. No date has been set, and Finley said the earliest he and his attorney could attend a hearing would be next week.

He said Neil Papiano, his Los Angeles lawyer, was busy preparing final arguments in Finley's suit against Kuhn. Those are due next Monday.

U.S. District Court Judge Frank McGarr, who presided at the trial, said the key issue was whether Kuhn had the power to void the sales of pitcher Vida Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million and outfielder Joe Rudi and pitcher Rollie Fingers to Boston for $1 million each.

Kuhn claims he acted within his power to look after the best interests of baseball. Finley, in that case and in the Lindblad sale, contends Kuhn has no authority to cancel the deals.

"This is still none of his business and without question he is conducting a personal vendetta against me ... I don't know why. Maybe this is what makes him wake up every morning," Finley said.

Finley said Lindblad Saturday, one day after Kuhn told all club owners not to sell any star player for a substantial amount of money before notifying his office.

Royal Derby big winner

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Royal Derby II overtook early leaders to post a half-length victory Monday in the $68,700 Santa Anita Obispo Handicap at Santa Anita Park.

Jockey Bill Shoemaker guided the horse home ahead of Gallivantor in the 1 1/2-mile stakes race before a crowd of 40,093. Royal Derby II's time was 2:45 4/5 seconds. He carried 126 pounds in the field of 10.

Anne's Pretender was another half-length back in third, while the same distance separated him from Teddy's Courage.

Royal Derby II, owned by E.E. Fogelson and trainer Charles Whittingham, was linked in wagering with Kings Cliffe, who finished seventh. The entry paid $4.80, $3.40 and $2.60.

Gallivantor, a 15-1 longshot ridden by Don Pierce, returned $9.60 and $5.20, while Anne's Pretender, ridden by Angel Cordero Jr., paid $3.40.

Royal Derby, who earned $41,700, stayed back in the field early in the race while Anne's Pretender and Maitland II maintained the pace. Maitland II weakened in the homestretch and finished last, while the other horses could not overcome Royal Derby's late run.

The handicap was the seventh stakes victory of the Santa Anita meeting for Shoemaker and the 695th of his career.

"This old guy really tries hard," said Shoemaker of his horse. "We had good position all the way, but it got a little rough through the stretch when everyone was fanned across the track."

Angels open drills with a lot of hope

HOLTVILLE (AP) — After spending $5 million on three free agents, the Angels were to begin spring training today in this desert town for a year they hope will finally see them a winner.

Fans bought a large number of season tickets and experts pick the Angels as one of the teams to beat in the American League West.

The reasons for the optimism is that owner Gene Autry, unhappy over the team's record, laid out the $5 million to corral free agents Joe Rudi, Bobby Grich and Don Baylor.

"We are going to be good. I'm sure of that," said manager Norm Sherry, who replaced Dick Williams in the second half of last season.

"We may get into the season and prove that we're the team to beat, but I don't want the players to take it for granted, to just assume that because we're improved we'll win automatically. I want them confident, but I don't want them believing everything they read and hear."

Pitchers and catchers were to report today.

Cal campus stunned

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — News of the death of University of California quarterback Joe Roth was met with stunned silence on campus after the 21-year-old lost a three-year battle against cancer.

Many students heard the news at a Cal basketball game Saturday night, a few hours after Roth died in his Berkeley apartment surrounded by his parents, coaches, friends and teammates.

Since then, the silence has turned to expressions of admiration for the quiet battle Roth kept mostly to himself after discovering he suffered from a rare form of cancer called melanoma.

Off the football field, Roth was active at the Roman Catholic Newman Hall on campus.

"People have been reacting with a great deal of admiration for Joe Roth," said the Rev. Michael Hunt.

"His illness only became public in January and many of the students, not then aware of the extent of the cancer, have spoken of his extreme heroism," Father Hunt said.

Roth's funeral will be private, but priests at Newman Hall will say a memorial mass at 7 p.m. tonight.

"He left many friends," Father Hunt said. "He was here only a relatively short period of time."

Roth, 6-foot-4 with curly blonde hair, left his mark on coaches and teammates as well.

Linebacker Pete Sitta said, "We loved him. It's too tragic for words." Roth was released from the UC Medical Center in San Francisco last Thursday at his own request.

From then until the end he was never alone as family and teammates took turns sitting at his bedside.

"It was just a terrible way it happened, a slow death, eating away at him," said teammate and former roommate Bob Warner. "He was the kind of guy who didn't want people feeling sorry for him."

Skip Stress of the football coaching staff said Roth "cherished his privacy."

"As a college quarterback, he didn't have a lot of spare time. There was football; Sundays were reserved for mass, and he liked intramural water polo," Stress said.

When Roth's illness was made public last month, Roth said "Really, just figure I'm a normal guy."

Father Hunt said "I think Joe always faced up to it."

Roth will be buried in Jerome, Idaho, where his parents now make their home.

Roth, a No. 1 prospect on the list of professional football scouts, first learned of the cancer in 1974 at a junior college near his native San Diego.

Surgery then was successful and he helped Cal tie for the Pacific-8 championship in 1975. The cancer apparently began plaguing him again this season and he was forced to drop out of the post-season East-West Shrine game.

He returned to play in the Hula Bowl and last played in the Jan. 15 Japan Bowl in Tokyo.

He continued to attend college classes until two weeks ago.

Damien, Claremont booters play at home

San Antonio League soccer champion Damien High and co-runnerup Claremont both will play home games in Friday's opening round of the CIF playoffs.

Seven local teams received berths in the soccer pairings announced Monday by the CIF office.

SAL co-runnerup Garey and four other local second-place teams — Chaffey of the Ivy League, Alta Loma of the Hacienda League, Webb of the Montview League and Ontario Christian of the Olympic League — will open on the road Friday.

Webb, however, won't have to travel far, since the Gauls will play at Damien. Claremont will host Huntington Beach, the No. 3 team from the Sunset League.

Garey will visit Santa Ana Valley, the champion of the Orange County League.

Chaffey will travel to Garden Grove to meet third-seeded Pacifica, the Garden Grove League champion. Alta Loma will visit Santa Fe League titlist Bosco Tech and Ontario Christian will go to Thermal to play Coachella Valley, champion of the Desert Valleys League.

Hacienda League champion Gladstone will host Pater Noster, the Santa Fe League's No. 2 team.

Times for Friday's playoff games will be set later this week by the schools involved.

Damien, Claremont, Garey and Webb are all 4A teams for soccer. Chaffey, Alta Loma and Ontario Christian are 3A.

Mountie bats erupt in easy 17-3 romp

By PAUL CLICK
PB Correspondent

Mt. San Antonio College racked up 10 runs and 12 hits in the first three innings Monday afternoon as the Mounties posted a 17-3 decision over visiting Los Angeles City College.

The Mounties' attack, which hammered three LACC pitchers for a total of 17 runs and 19 hits, was paced by Bob Costello (4-for-4), Brian Menasco (2-for-2), Mark Bridgewater (2-for-3), Mark Canavan (2-for-2), Joe Koval added a triple, and freshman Bill Henley smashed a grand slam homer in the eighth. The 17 runs surpassed MSAC's season high of 15 set against Compton and San Diego Mesa.

"We'd been a little careless up until Saturday's scrimmage game with La Verne," noted MSAC's Art Mazmanian about his club's performance Monday.

"We made up our minds that we were going to start playing ball like we're capable of. The only disappointing thing was our pitchers still walked too many guys today. I'd like to see them not walk anybody. We have been swinging the bat well and we've had games in which a lot of the players have gotten a chance to play which is bound to help us."

LACC took a brief 1-0 lead in the top half of the first before MSAC scored four times in its first inning at bat. The Mounties broke open the contest with a pair of three-run innings in the second and third frames.

Bridgewater and Menasco delivered the big blows of the first inning as the Mounties jumped out to a 4-1 margin. Both hits resulted in two runs crossing the plate.

MSAC used three pitchers in the contest with Dave Drury of Bonita High picking up the victory. He relieved Kevin Chapman at the beginning of the fourth inning. Drury settled down and pitched two easy innings in the fifth and sixth frames. Dave Bottorff pitched the final three innings.

The trio of Mountie pitchers held LACC to five hits as they fanned six and walked seven batters. Mazmanian asked about the progress of his squad said, "I would say that if the pitchers wouldn't walk so many guys, I would say yes. The hitting has certainly been working at it and doing the job."

"Defensively we've been doing the job," added Mazmanian. "Outside of one play which cost us the Pasadena game, the only major fault that I can find right now is that we're still walking too many guys. We've been walking five and six guys a game and you can't win against the good teams walking that many. It's like giving them six hits!"

The Mounties had 12 men with at least one hit in the contest as Mazmanian played a total of 20 players. He went to the bench in the fourth after building an early 10-2 lead.

The Mounties concluded their scoring in the eighth as Henley belted a 2-0 fast-ball over the right-field fence with three MSAC players on base. Henley is just a freshman from Temple City High.

"It was hard to determine individual efforts today," explained Mazmanian. "Let's face it, their (LACC's) pitching wasn't that good. Hitting is only relative of the type pitching you're facing."

MSAC, which is 6-2 on the '77 slate, returns to action Thursday in the opening day of the John Arambide Invitational Tournament. The Mounties will battle El Camino in a 2 p.m. contest on the varsity diamond.

Walton probable tonight

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Center Bill Walton probably will return to action tonight after an absence of nearly a month because of an inflamed Achilles tendon, a spokesman for the Portland Trail Blazers said.

Walton's return for the National Basketball Association's stretch run is none to soon for the Blazers. During his absence, they were 3-7 and dropped out of the Pacific Division lead. They trail the Los Angeles Lakers by two games going into tonight's game against the Boston Celtics.

Walton worked out with the team Monday and his injury did not give him problems.

"If he can do what he did in practice today, then he can play and help us," Coach Jack Ramsay said. "What he did today was very encouraging. He looks like he is in pretty good shape, too."

Walton said, "I worked out pretty hard last Wednesday and Thursday and then my leg was sore Friday. But it doesn't feel bad now and I just hope it isn't sore tomorrow."

Forward Lloyd Neal, who has been out for nearly four weeks while resting a troublesome knee, also worked out.

"Lloyd's progress is encouraging, too," Ramsay said. "I would guess that he wouldn't be ready to play until Friday, though."

Heart attack fells Jordan

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Former Green Bay Packers star Henry Jordan, known for his sense of humor on the football field and in the business world, died Monday of an apparent heart attack.

Jordan, 42, was found dead in the Milwaukee Athletic Club, where he had been jogging.

His death not only saddened his former National Football League teammates, it affected the city's Summerfest, an annual festival which Jordan—as executive director—had helped put on a sound fiscal footing.

While an All-Pro defensive tackle, he was in demand as a dinner speaker because of his wit. Many of his jokes were geared to the legend of Coach Vince Lombardi, under whom the Packers achieved NFL fame in the 1960s.

His humor stayed with him in the business world. One of the stories about his management of Summerfest involved two rock musicians taken into custody by police on drug charges shortly before a concert for which 25,000 tickets had been sold. The glib Jordan persuaded police to put the performers in his custody long enough to put on the show.

"Everybody on the football team looked to Henry for humor that would relax a tense situation," said Zeke Bratkowski, former Packers quarterback.

"He had such great confidence in his own ability, he was kind of an evangelist for the Packers and the city of Milwaukee and Summerfest," Bratkowski said.

Bart Starr, Lombardi's star quarterback and now Packers general manager, roomed with Jordan and traveled with him on the banquet circuit.

"He could always create a funny situation with just a wisecrack," Starr said. "Even if you were the last one to speak, he somehow had the last word. And heaven help you if he had the mike (microphone) last."

Jordan majored in business administration at the University of Virginia, where he was named to the dean's list. He was drafted by the Cleveland Browns in 1957, and moved to Green Bay two years later.

He left the NFL in 1969 to use his business schooling for Summerfest, impressing the carnival's directors with his bookkeeping and his fundraising among merchants.

"His favorite thing," Bratkowski said, "was: 'I'm not concerned about being nervous. The guy playing across from me better be nervous.'"

JOHNNY WONDER

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Did you ever see a fruit with rind hard enough to use as a cooking pot? A gourd is such a fruit. Gourds are ornamental fruits that are closely related to squashes and pumpkins. Like their more familiar relatives, gourds grow on vines with long, trailing stems. The leaves may be a foot across. Gourds grow wild in many parts of the United States, in many shapes and sizes, and are known by such names as Hercules club, dipper, and bottle. In pioneer days the settlers often cleaned and dried the tough shells and used them for cups, bottles and jugs, as well as for cooking pots. The inside of the gourd called vegetable sponge, or dishcloth gourd, is full of stringy fibers. When dried, the spongy fibers can be used as a sponge or dishcloth. Very young vegetable sponges are among the few gourds that can be eaten. But gourds are raised mainly for decorations.
